

New variety show will liven up the airwaves

When Virginia Dickerman is around everything liven up. Virginia is adding a new television series to the Channel 12 line-up, "The Dickerman Showcase." She will feature talented people giving them a chance to entertain or share their craft.

She met her first guests at the Uplon Plaza at the Farmington Foundation's Festival. Their talents impressed her so much she decided to ask them to be part of her new show. Guitar player David Alexander and singer Shelley Quale. David is a Michigan man who lived in Colorado for awhile. He plays the piano, guitar and harmonica. Shelley has been a singer for over 20 years performing in various night clubs.

Virginia Dickerman is also continuing "Dance With Virginia" where viewers can learn to dance in their living rooms.

Barbara Early, lead dancer of "42nd Street" Broadway Show is a former student of Virginia's. Barbara is writing a book on dance. She plans to dedicate a chapter on Virginia's life as a dancer. Virginia has been dancing since the age of 4.

Check out the Channel 12 for these entertaining programs.
