

'Uncle Art' nominated for scenic design award

This is the season for film and video competition. On May 11 the Detroit/Michigan Chapter of The National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences hosted the Thirteenth Annual Emmy Awards Presentation. In the category of "scenic design" the "Uncle Art's Halloween Special" produced and directed by our Donnell Conway was one of the three programs to be recognized by nomination.

Many will remember the program as your children came into our MetroVision studio to go on television and talk to Uncle Art. The other programs in the same competition were "Quiz Busters No. 91-11" by John A. Dunlevy of WKAR. The winner was "The Motor-City Poppy Game" by Glynn Christman of WKBD.

"We created a set that was even more like Halloween than any of our homes," Donnell said. I am particularly proud that this program was recognized in the area of set design. The visual medium in today's world is very critical to keeping the attention of the television viewer.

Donnell in particular shares this philosophy and enjoys working with her production crew to create interesting visuals for all her shows. These characteristics actually become special effects. Congratulations Donnell.
