MASTER MIND OF MODERN MYSTERY

Dunninger, The Master Mind of Modern Mystery, will headline the bill at B. F. Keith's Temple Theatre, starting Sunday afternoon, December 12. Dunninger presents his own original offering in "Mind Reading and Mental Telepathy" with which he has mystified the scientists of both ends of the Continent. Others billed: Fred Allen & Bert Yorke in a comedy called, "The Efficiency Men," Arthur & Morton Havel in "Oh Uncle," throughout the piece are doing their old antics with a few new ones for good measure. Edw. Stanislott and Gracie in "A Whirl of Dance," Louise Wright, a singer of dialect character songs, Pink & Smith in "The Sons of Humorous Parents," Sgt. Franklin & Ruby Boyce are presenting class and speed called, "Trifles and Rifles," and the weekly screen subjects complete the bill.

When a spectator at a moving picture show in Chicago nearly caused a panic by yelling, an usher knocked him out with a punch in the jaw.

Four Presidents Have Changed Their Names

Calvin Coolidge is the fourth President of the United States who changed his name from the one given at birth. In each case, a middle name became the first name by the change, and what is sometimes called "a name parted in the middle" was avoided. "A name parted in the middle" means one in which a first initial, a middle name and a last-one are used in the form of J. Huntington Smith.

It is said that Ulysses Grant changed his name to Ulysses Simpson Grant because as a youngster he was teased about the combination which his initials made. Stephen G. Cleveland became Grover Cleveland early in life because of his personal preference. Thomas W. Wilson grew to manhood as "Tommy" Wilson. Later he dropped his first name and used only his second and last names, so that the world knows him only as Woodrow Wilson.

President Coolidge was named for John Calvin, the famous Protestant reformer. But he liked only the Calvin name, so he dropped the first name entirely and avoided being called either J. Calvin Coolidge or John C. Coolidge.

Phone's Long Service in Fond Du Lac Store

For forty-eight years a request to Fond du Lac's "central" for "one fire" brought a telephone connection with the Henry feed and seed store on Main street, says the Milwaukee Journal. Because of this uninterrupted service to the same business house in the same location and with the same number, the Henry brothers, George A. and Clarence W., owners of the store since 1880, claim that they have the "oldest telephone" in this section, perhaps in the entire state. All records of Fond du Lac's first telephone company, established by the late Hartwell Langlo in 1877 or 1878, have been lost, but it has been established that when the exchange opened there were either fifteen or sixteen subscribers and that one of these original subscribers was Thomas S. Henry, who died in 1880, to be succeeded in business by his two sons, the present owners.

Signature in Demand

Postmaster General Harry S. New is one of the country's leading check writers.

Every day he signs a check for from $1,600,000 to $15,000,000. In the more than three years he has been at the head of the postal service, the greatest business establishment in the world, he has signed checks aggregating about $5,000,000,000. These checks, necessary to conduct the postal money order business alone, do not enter into the more than $600,000,000 spent yearly by the postmaster general in running the postal service.

Chain Letter Frowned On

Japanese authorities brought bad luck, in the shape of a four-yeen police court fine, to Yorihasa Murakami in place of the good luck he expected to receive for starting a "chain letter" to nine of his friends. Murakami had been told he would fall heir to great good fortune within nine days if he started a chain letter; likewise, if the letter spread to include all Japan, the postal officials would profit to the extent of 1,600,000 yen. Government officials frowned on the idea and arrested him just nine days after he started his chain.
