Made Youngsters "Sit Up"

Eighty-four winters have come and gone since Donat Rief, a Tyrol mountaineer living at Tannheim, Austria, was born; but when recently, some of the young men of the village tried to tease him a bit by insinuating that he is not quite as lively as he used to be, Rief challenged them to accompany him on a climb up the "Zugspitze," a mountain near Innsbruck which towers almost 9,000 feet. Rief made the trip up and down at an even tempo while one after another of the younger fellows dropped out.
