Lives That Extended

Far Beyond Century

The death occurred at Dromara, County Down, Ireland, a few weeks ago, of a man who claimed to be the oldest person in the British Isles. His name was William Smith, and his reputed age 126 years.

It is only a few years ago that the death took place of a Pole named Krassinski, who claimed to be well over 130 years old. He served in the French imperial guard from 1809 to 1813, and bore the scars of wounds received in the battle of Leipzig. He had vivid recollections of the disastrous retreat from Moscow, as well as the famous disaster at Berezina. Krassinski's father lived to 117 and his mother to 97.

John Shell, a Kentucky farmer, who died four or five years ago, claimed to be 125 years old. Some tourists discovered him, and the result of newspaper publicity was an examination by medical experts, whose verdict was that his claim was probably true. His own statement was that the year of his birth was 1788.

Sailing by Cyclone

One of the most novel propositions in the matter of navigation ever advanced is that for which a French mariner named Feron stands responsible. The Frenchman thinks that advantage may be taken of the favorable winds at the edge of a cyclone for facilitating navigation.

By means of observations with the barometer and other instruments he would ascertain the direction in which the storm is going and so shape the course of his ship that it would be carried along by the sweep of the atmosphere, without becoming involved in the dangerous center of the storm. This proposal to treat cyclones as friendly aids to navigation may strike one as an extravagant play of fancy, but it is soberly advanced by Feron, who, it is said, has made certain successful experiments in this new method of sailing the sea.

Egypt Overcrowded

Egypt is one of the most densely peopled countries of the world. The average population to a square mile is 939. In Belgium it is 588; in Holland, 400; in Great Britain, 342; in Japan, 317; in Italy, 294; in Germany, 290; in Austria, 226; in Switzerland, 215; in France, 190. In Russia in Europe the average is 50 to a square mile, but in Russia in Asia it is only a little more than three.

Brought Live Reindeer

The steamer W. M. Tupper, from Bethel, Alaska, docked at Seattle with more than 200 live reindeer, which were used in Christmas advertising throughout the United States. After serving this purpose they were presented to parks and zoos. The ship also carried $750,000 in gold, the year's output of mines in the Kuskokwim district of southwestern Alaska.

Employing Vehicle Tax

Levies on the motor vehicle rather than property taxation are being used to pay for highways, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1920 the percentage of highway expenditure derived from property taxation was 11.2 per cent.
