TIMELY WARNING

Don't fly your kite near an electric power line, and never use wire of any sort for kite string. In anticipation of the fact that March winds will soon be playing tag with thousands of kites in Michigan, the public utility information bureau issued this warning here.

Two boys in southern Michigan narrowly escaped receiving injuries a few days ago when their kite string fell across a power line. The electrical disturbance which the string set up destroyed the electric wires between two poles, and burned up the kite string.

Serious injury to the kite-flyer may result should a string which is slightly wet come in contact with a high tension electric line, according to the bureau. Wire used as kite string is extremely dangerous, and the bureau urged parents to caution their children against using wire for kite-flying.

It's fine to be unselfish if you can keep quiet about it.

Some people can make us positively happy if they will leave us alone and keep out of our sight.

Now that Electrical servants have relieved women of the drudgery of housework, they've become so restless that they want to stay out half the night.

We Want Your Business!

And we are going to get it if fair treatment and right prices have anything to do with it.

We guarantee our goods—and we guarantee to sell Furniture as cheap as any concern in Michigan, quality considered.

We own our buildings, and that helps us to sell cheaper. We buy for two furniture stores, and we buy for cash. Our buying power at the factories under these conditions is another big thing in your favor. It helps us to keep the prices down. And that is what you want.

No store or concern of any kind selling furniture can compete with us in prices, when quality is taken into consideration.

Come in and look around and see for yourself.
