AMERICAN GASOLINE STATION GIVES FLAGS FOR FOURTH OF JULY

The American Gasoline Filling Station, at Grand River and Cass avenues, Farmington, will celebrate its first anniversary on July 3. In celebration of its anniversary, and for the Fourth of July holiday, the station will give a set of flags with holder for automobile radiator caps to all who purchase five gallons of gasoline or more.

The station, which is a model of cleanliness and neat appearance, is operated by the American Premier Oil Company, with John Johnson and W. H. Walters as the local men in charge.

A MONEY-MAKER

I wish to sell to real homemakers a farm of two hundred eighty acres.

The soil is fertile and has the stuff in it to let a good farmer go to the limit.

The outside buildings you can count not a few, and one of the barns is large and quite new. It sits on a wall on the side of a mound, and you enter the rear on good level ground.

The basement is handy; you work early and late; the equipment is such that it's approved by the state.

The silo's so built it protects from the cold and its contents are kept from vermin and mold.

A house of ten rooms, right to date and well made, sits on a hill that has plenty of shade.

The Edison is near, so there is no alarm, for I'll install that service in the house and the barn.

You can go when you please and drive any gait, for the roads are improved by town, county and state.

This farm I proclaim is not far away for you could visit Detroit three times in a day.

The price of the farm, I assure was made to not hold you up; I might take some trade.

AN IDEAL SUMMER HOME

When school is out.

Your children, you know, Should be at a lake.

Where they sure can grow.

With this in mind

On any occasion,

You'll come to Union

For a vacation.

So on this week-end

Don't try and try

To find a place

That will satisfy.

But start the motor

And release the brake,

And steer your car

Toward Union Lake.

Select this spot

Where your family can rest;

Your children will play

And feel at their best.

O, that invigorating bath!

They'll play hand in hand

In the sparkling waters

That flow from the land.

They will take a deep breath

—And not feel choked.

For the air is free

From dust and smoke.

You can live on the porch

And feel the cool breeze,

For the place is surrounded

By beautiful trees.

The vision you meet

To your eye seems so kind,

That it will cause all others

To fade from your mind.
