Have You Relatives Living Out of Town?

Or are there friends to whom you would like to talk? More and more, are people turning to the social use of Long Distance telephone service.

We suggest that you use the lower cost Station-to-Station call whenever it will serve your purpose. A Station-to-Station call is the kind of call to make when you are reasonably certain that the person with whom you wish to talk will answer the telephone or can be called to it quickly.

In placing such a call, give the Long Distance Operator the number you are calling. If you do not know the number, however, say to her, for instance, "I want Mr. John Smith's residence at 350 Sayre Street, Lansing, Michigan." Be sure that you do not specify to the operator that she call any particular person. A call placed for a particular person is known as a Person-to-Person call and costs more than a Station-to-Station call.

There are reduced Evening rates on Station-to-Station calls, from 7:00 p. m. to 8:30 p. m., with further reduction during the Night rate period, from 8:30 p. m. to 4:30 a. m.
