

Volunteers thanked for helping with cable show

When was the last time you thanked your television crew and other volunteers for participating in producing a program? Saturday at the Sheridan Oaks in Novi, the Myers family thanked all those involved with their television series, "Junior Japanese."

Chairman of the Cable Commission, William Hartstock, was present. Also present were the children who participate in the program, members of the video crew, as well as Lark Samouelian and Mary Calderone from the Cable Commission. The Myers family talked about the importance of producing a program together, and they gave out recognition awards for support of this concept. It was particularly pleased to attend this event because it demonstrated to me the value of working together as a family; how we can learn from one another by interacting different cultures together, and how through this enriching experience we enhance the lives of other people.

If there is any way that we can encourage or help provide a location for a small gathering to thank your television production crew, please contact Mary Calderone or Lark Samouelian at the Southwestern Oakland Cable Commission.
