Historical photos and ribbons adorned a tree in one display window at the Focal Point Studio of Photography on Grand River. Focal Point won for Best Overall Design.

Downtown Farmington merchant Sara Warren of Warren's Country Corner poses in her window display at Alta Loma and Farmington roads. The store won for Best Use of Merchandise.

12 awards given for window decorations

They decked their halls for the holidays and were rewarded for their efforts.

Three downtown businesses got prizes for decorating their windows effectively as part of a recent promotion co-sponsored by the city's Downtown Development Authority and the Downtown Farmington Business Association.

Winners included: Warren's Country Corner for Best Use of Merchandise; Focal Point Studio for Best Overall Design; and Why USA All-American Properties for Most Creative Display.

The three were awarded plaques and $500 worth of advertising in the Observer, which sponsored the contest.

Nine area residents were also winners during the Saturday, Dec. 7 downtown holiday promotion, where nine merchants held drawings. They included:

- P. Cowley who won $50 worth of gift passes to the Civic Theatre.
- Betty Thodes-Charri who won a gift certificate from Books Abound.
- Diane Dalley who won a gift certificate from Books for Less.
- Dan Harrison who won a $25 gift certificate from Dagwood's Deli.
- Margaret Riggs who won a Dirt Devil vacuum from Dammann Hardware.
- Carol Remington who won an Entertainment Book from Metrobank.
- N. Phillips who won a holiday centerpiece from Michele Marc's Flowers.
- Charlene Cooper who won a cross stitch serving tray from The Rocking Horse.
- Joan Bacon who won a Christmas jar with fragrance candle from Warren's Country Corner.
