DIGESTIVE DISEASE

Your Guide To High Fiber Diet
Dietary fiber is undigested or digested plant residue that passes almost intact through the digestive system. It promotes bulk and moisture of the stool to help move the stool through the intestines. If you modify your diet you may be able to help reduce the risk of certain diseases such as constipation, hemorrhoids, diverticulosis, and irritable bowel syndrome. Fiber also helps to maintain normal bowel function. Some food items are rich in fiber such as vegetables, beans, peas, fresh fruits, cereal, whole grain breads and crackers. Fiber is recommended as a part of a healthy diet. In general, high fiber foods are low in calories, and can be satisfying because they take a long time to chew.
