

Knollenberg, Honigman join race for Broomfield's seat

By Wayne Peel
staff writer

William Broomfield's retirement from Congress will produce a race, not an appointment.

Former Oakland County GOP chairman Joseph Knollenberg of Bloomfield Township will formally announce his candidacy today, prompting a Republican primary. He joins state Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, in the race to succeed the veteran Congressman.

Knollenberg, a Troy-based insurance agent, is expected to receive Broomfield's endorsement.

"I can't say anything yet, but stay tuned," Knollenberg said Tuesday, adding that Broomfield encouraged him to run.

At the same time, Honigman announced he had received endorsement from former Oakland County prosecutor L. Brooks Patterson.

Other candidates may also join the race.

"I KNOW THERE are groups looking for candidates, but I haven't heard any names," current Oakland County chairman James Alexander said. "But with his name recognition and fund-raising ability, I've got to believe David is the odds-on favorite."

The county party will remain neutral during the primary, Alexander said.

As of yet, no Democrats have announced for the seat, but one could be close.

Honigman, who would have run against Broomfield, said he welcomed any and all challengers.

"This is a political process, no one can be anointed," Honigman said.

The district includes Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Farmington Hills, Bingham Farms, Franklin Lakes, Lathrup Village and most of Southfield. Its Wayne County portion includes Redford and Livonia, north of I-96.

THE HONIGMAN/KNOLENBERG race could prove a battle between the party's old and new guard as well as a battle for the county's longtime supporters. Broomfield campaign treasurer Gerald Kostensky of Orchard Lake endorsed Honigman in a statement released Tuesday through the state senator's office.

Both candidates promised an issue-oriented campaign.

Striving his Illinois farm roots, Knollenberg called himself a fiscal conservative.

"It's also pro-life — to a point," he said, adding exceptions should be allowed in cases of rape and incest or if the mother's life were in jeopardy.

While Knollenberg is putting his organization together, Honigman is already out campaigning.

"We'll be knocking on people's doors this weekend," he said.

Honigman is stressing job creation through elimination of "unnecessary business regulations" and tax cuts.

Knollenberg was county GOP chairman from 1978-88 and later led a slate of pro-George Bush delegates to the 1988 state convention. He currently serves on the state Republican Party candidate committee.

Honigman served three terms in the state House before becoming a state senator last year.

Honigman said his congressional campaign strategy wasn't changing because of Broomfield's departure.

nor did he expect a race with Broomfield to have turned into the political bloodbath speculated by others.

"I HAVE A LOT of respect for Bill," said Honigman, who called Broomfield "a good man who served local residents faithfully and honestly."

It would have been a gentlemanly campaign that centered on the issues," Honigman said. "I know that this is a departure for this day and age, but that's what it would have been."

Broomfield is resigning

Broomfield said he will continue to represent the people of his district during his remaining months in office.

But he makes no bones about being dissatisfied with Washington politics.

"The last three to four years have been nothing but gridlock. There has been more confrontation between the president and the Congress than I've ever seen in all my years in office. The whole problem of scandal has taken over doing anything about national issues."
