IF THE detailed arrangements the '90s bridal couple will be handling when planning their V.I.A. (Very Important Affair).

Finding a church or synagogue, reception hall, caterer, florist, photographer, cake specialist, musicians, singer, invitations, bridal gown, bridesmaid dresses, tuxedo and honeymoon arrangements are just a few of the endless accommodations that will often find the bridal couple in compromising positions.

But the most fundamental elements of every bridal dream and fantasy can be viewed in Three-D . . . Dainties, Diamonds and Other Delights.

• DAINTIES

From feminine negligee sets to sexy bustiers and garter belts, lingerie for the bride will fit every attitude, budget and chassis.

Underpinnings are not only a frivolous, romantic luxury item that brings smiles to those who don and dare, but are also a functional part of every woman's wardrobe.

With proper foundations, a woman can eliminate unsightly panty lines, increase bustlines, slim thighs and provide the needed support and foundation for those sexy, strapless, low back and off-the-shoulder looks that will be worn at intimate honeymoon dinners and special summer occasions.

Shirley Zirkof of Lulu's Lingerie in Bloomfield Hills gave us a detailed list of essential bridal trousseau items: 12 pair bikini panties, 12 matching bras, two half slips (black and beige), a white negligee set, a pretty nightshirt, a white terry robe and a minimum six pairs of pantyhose . . . along with, of course, the traditional lace garter to throw at the reception.

The biggest trend for women's
