Keep 'Big Business' Out 4 Phys Ed Classes Offered By S'craft Of Livonia's Center

Editor:
The Woodcreek Farms subdivision in Livonia feels it appropriate to restate its opinion concerning the proposed rezoning of Five Mile and Farmington Roads. We recently polled the residents and and the following reflects the majority feeling:
We are against the rezoning.

Most of us came to Livonia to get away from the "downtowns" of our society. Some of us have changed addresses in Livonia to escape the encroachment of monuments to business. We settled here because it appeared to be free from the possibility of dense commercialization. We had no fear of a civic center development. This is necessary to carry on the business of a city government. This is a residential area.

One writer in particular was extremely hypocritical-blaming the justifiable reaction on such unrelated matters as the ABM and the Vietnam war, which are best left to the military to decident the lady's sewing club-or there won't be a damn thing left for anybody to attend! More precisely, many of us are ted up, with waste overywhere, including that in our present educational system. When the school board decides to quit passing the buck and eliminates such fills as marble oditionals, and several to be a several to frills as marble drinking fountains, air-conditioning, front-door bus service, aid to the dope-taking, destructive radical students (who is not among the majority of students but usually has "influential" parents) and other glaring wastes of the taxpayer's money, they might ask for a half mill and get by with it.

How many times do Livonia's taxpayers have to before the present big time spenders get the message and take a lesson in simple economics?

I sincerely hope all those who so wisely defeated the first school tax proposal this year will not be brained-washed, sweet-talked, or brow-beater into accepting the second proposal. If some people want to spoil theis kids, let them do so with their own money, not with everyone else's!
