

House belies appearances

From outside, the Duchess looks like a basic country-style home, a little on the large side. But a closer look at the exterior, and a glance inside the lofty skylit foyer, tells you that this is no old-fashioned farmhouse.

The wrap-around front porch is country, but the wide custom door isn't. It's flanked by sidelights and crowned on the second floor level by a huge half-round window.

This wealth of glass increases street appeal and combines with skylights to create a strikingly bright entry area. Add a few potted trees and you've got an atrium.

At the back of the foyer, a graceful polished wood balustrade curves up to reach the three bedrooms on the second floor, where a landing overlooks the foyer. Two bedrooms have walk-in closets. Linen storage is in the hallway, and the skylit bathroom has two bins in an extra-long vanity.

Following tradition, the formal dining room is on one side of the foyer and the living room, or parlor, is on the other. But the rest of the lower level is contemporary. A small bathroom and a large closet are close to both the entrance and the kitchen.

The kitchen is huge, expanded by a garden window and a sun-brightened nook with a sliding door that opens onto the deck. A raised eating bar wraps around three sides of an extended work island with a centrally located cooktop.

The utility room has everything — a deep sink, fold-down ironing board, closet, counters for folding clothes and space enough to handle a sewing machine. Its location between the garage and kitchen is handy for hauling groceries in from the car or shucking off messy footwear to avoid tracking carpets.

Skylights brighten the vaulted family room. A fireplace of woodstove tiles is in the back corner. The master suite has a huge walk-in closet, two closets in the bathroom and another in the dressing area.
