

In the final run, the audience knows best

LARK SAMOUELIAN

It matters... Yes, the idea you developed into a television show is being watched. Yes... this column is being read. How do you know? You and your neighbors have been calling us. As a matter of fact, I have been hearing so much that it has inspired television program ideas and this column.

"The freedom of speech" is a democratic right. What you say is your direct responsibility, as is how you behave. Somehow it seems to make a difference when someone who recognizes you is affected in a positive or negative light by what you say or do.

The producer of a television show also must give conscientious thought to the audience intended. It is only fair to assure your guests, to design a program, which is balanced and edited as intended.

How your talent or guests are presented, as viewed on television, is also important for the producer to consider. A tie may be straightened, a button fastened, a hairdo rearranged on the face may be seen. The set design is also a crucial element to reinforce this democratic right. If you are not the creative type, talk to our staff and/or fellow producers to insure that the subject of your show is visible throughout.

People switch channels constantly. They are watching and they are listening. This creates a very real and important opportunity. Be thoughtful as you speak for you will be heard. Smile for you will be seen. Be creative for you will be appreciated.
