Woman reports rape, robbery

A Bloomfield Hills woman reported she was raped and robbed by a man wearing a ski cap Monday night as she was preparing to leave her office in the Riverside office complex, 27600 Northwestern Highway, Southfield.

Investigating Southfield police said the incident occurred shortly after 8 p.m. in the building on the north side of Northwestern, east of Telegraph and south of Tel-Twelve Mall.

The 44-year-old victim told police she was about to lock her office for the night when the assailant approached her and forced her back into the office, according to police spokesman L.A. Moore.

"She screamed as loud as she could," said Moore, "and the man hit her in the face."

Police said he sexually assaulted her, stole her purse and fled out the office door. The woman had about $100 and credit cards in her purse.

She was treated at the scene by Southfield paramedics for minor facial injuries.

She described her assailant as speaking with a foreign accent "but his English was clear," Moore said. Police are looking for a man about 35 years old, 5-foot-9-inches tall wearing a three-quarter-length gray wool coat, black pants and dark ski cap.

Wrapping gifts

Giving Christmas: Members of the Farmington Hills Police Officer Association wrapped and then delivered gifts to selected families through the Salvation Army. Jem Knittel, left, Craig Summers and Ron Shankin were among the officers taking part.
