

New human services appointee put center on non-profit map

For the second time in a month, Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson announced his choice for administrator of health and human services.

Patterson appeared before the board of commissioners last Thursday to introduce Mounir Sharobeem, director of Royal Oak's Judson Center, as his appointee to the position; his first appointee, Dr. Edwin Blumberg, withdrew in December following allegations that he had mismanaged several nursing homes.

Should the board approve Sharobeem next month, he will assume control of the county's largest department and a full-time, $73,000-a-year job.

Patterson said he had received many letters recommending Sharobeem for the position.

"I don't think I'm exaggerating or being hyperbolic in telling you the esteem in which I hold Mounir Sharobeem. (He) will be the kind of innovator we need for the largest part of county government," Patterson said.

Sharobeem has won accolades for his guidance of the Judson Center, and has helped it to expand its services, it now offers a home for abused children, group homes for mentally ill adults, foster care and adoption services, alcohol and substance abuse counseling.

selling, and home family counseling.

Among Sharobeem's major accomplishments is his "Living in Family Environments" program, which paid welfare mothers to care for developmentally disabled children. In 1991, this program was the first recipient of the national Peter F. Drucker Award for non-profit innovation.

Feds give boost to area bike paths

By TIM RICHARD

Bike paths and landscaping are part of Michigan's Infrastructure, too, said Gov. John Engler as he announced federal aid for 53 projects, including six in this region of Oakland County.

No state money is involved. The federal government is putting up $9.6 million under a 1991 law called ISTEA (Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficient Act). Local governments will match it with $3.6 million for $13 million worth of improvements.

■ Rochester Hills — Construction of an eight-foot-wide bike path along 1.2 miles of Auburn Road between Adams and Brooks roads, $186,800 federal, $46,700 local.

■ Rochester Hills — Construction of an eight-foot-wide bike path along South Boulevard from Livernois Avenue to Rochester Road, $109,000 federal, $27,000 local.

■ Southfield — Construction of 1.4 miles of a crushed limestone bike path along the Rouge River to link 12 Mile and Civic Center Drive, $186,800 federal, $46,500 local.

■ Southfield — Construction of sidewalks and curb ramps on Telegraph Road between Eight Mile and 10 Mile roads, $67,620 federal, $14,380 local.

■ Troy — Construction of an eight-foot-wide bike path along Square Lake Road from Adams to Livernois, and underneath I-75 on Coallidge Road from Square Lake Road south for about 350 feet, $371,000 federal, $93,000 local.
