

Public access club forms

LARK SAMOUELIAN

CABLE CONNECTION
If you have frequented any of the community access studios in Farmington, Novi or Farmington Hills as a crew person or producer, a club is beginning to form as a result of interest within the Public Access Advisory Committee. No, this isn't a committee meeting; it is really an opportunity to get together and have fun — to meet others involved with television, share camaraderie, and brainstorm about ways you can enhance your shows.

Bob Lichtman will host the first meeting, at 7 p.m. Monday, April 19, in the studio at SWOCC. Chuck Cook will present the by-laws that he and several other people have put together over the past year — about how the club will best work. Mark your calendars and be sure to be there.

Meanwhile, changes are taking place each day at the federal government level. The Federal Communications Commission is developing policies and final regulations governing the cable industry. The months of March and April will find local governments, as well as the cable industry, learning about how business will be handled.

The FCC has issued regulations on the following subjects:

- Carriage of months of programming on leased access channels.
 - Home wiring.
 - Over-the-air television signals, contractual agreements.
 - Customer service standards.
 - Anti-buycott through of basic tier of service.
- More than go into detail, call me, Lark Samouelian, if you would like to learn along with us. I will host a meeting for review of these regulations in May for any resident or council person interested in keeping up on the state of the industry.
