

Top young bowlers start coming of age

The next generation of all-star bowlers promises to be bigger and better than ever.

The youth leagues are coming up with some outstanding young talent that will eventually work up the ladder to the classic and all-star levels of competition.

One example is Canton resident David Rosenbaum, who fired a 300 game along with an 800 series. This 16-year-old bowler accomplished the feat in last week's Saturday Youth League at Town N Country Lanes in Westland.

Rosenbaum is also one of the top competitors in the Wayne-Westland Youth League.

Many of the top youth bowlers are involved in one of three popular travel leagues, while others prefer to stay home at their local center. Either way, the best talent shows up at an early age.

The up-and-coming stars from the Observer & Eccentric communities are Joe Niemczyk, 17, of Farmington Hills with a 197 average; Derrick Jasper of Livonia with a 190; David Capaldi of Westland, who now bowls for the diversity of Michigan and averages more than 200; Jason L. Johnson of Canton with a 182; Jeff Mendoza, 16, of Livonia with a 190; Scott Wright of Farmington Hills with a 182; Chris Bryman, 13, of Livonia with a 185; Robbie Lhamon, of Farmington with a 185; Tanika Glenn, 17, of Farmington Hills who averages more than 190; and Julie Wright of Farmington Hills with a 196.

Glenn and Wright, who have enjoyed success in local and state tournaments, have aspirations to make it to the Ladies Pro Bowling Tour.

Some other leading youth ladies include Nyla Klauka of Westland with a 185; Candi Schlacht of Livonia with a 180; Lisa Grandfield of Redford; and Danielle LaBorde of West Bloomfield.

Bill Lhamon of Farmington Hills, Melissa Goyette of Livonia and Mary Lou Madison are also among the more elite group.

A couple of younger bowlers, West Bloomfield's Ryan Lash and Brian Raf, are showing plenty of potential at the ages of 12 and 13, respectively. Pat Cochran of Farmington Hills is averaging more than 200 while a couple of Westland boys, 16-year-old Rocky Bateman and 17-year-old Shawn Arbogast, are averaging in the 190s.

With this kind of talent developing, the future of bowling looks very good for our area.

What's an Irishman to do on St. Patrick's Day?

Mike Meyer of Westland had the perfect answer March 17 while bowling in the Men's Senior House League at Livonia's Merit Bowl Lanes.

Meyer's games of 255-300-247 totalled 805. A grand way to celebrate the wearing of green — by winning a bit more of something green.

(13-11), a Cinderella team, is coached by Sam Allford, father of Indiana's former No. 1 son Steve. The Trojans also have a healthy following. It's a sea of green on their side.

1:50 p.m.: Anderson pulls away from New Castle, 86-67. The final starts at 8:15 p.m.

2:17 p.m.: Too many hot dogs and too many games. It's time for a little rest and relaxation at the Hoosier Dome. Little buddy BJ augments a log. Not even 12 yet, he takes me on a strenuous 5-mile jaunt which leads us close to Ben Davis High, tonight's finalist.

7:15 p.m.: Back to Hinkle. What an atmosphere for basketball. The place is crowded. It's almost capacity, about 12,000.

Anderson brings even more people for the night session. It's a different world down here. A preliminary to the game is a slam-dunk contest.

8:15 p.m.: Both teams are playing in a frenzy. Kojak Fuller, Anderson's 5-foot-7 dynamo, is getting off, but Ben Davis leads at halftime. Nicknamed the Giant, Ben Davis cheerleaders chant "We are, B.D.I."

8:51 p.m.: Another exhilarating three-point shooting contest at halftime.

9:58 p.m.: Anderson is history despite Fuller's 47-point performance. This guy plays like Calvin Murphy. He's so fast. He hits 18 of 30 shots from the field. Nobody can block his jumper. Ben Davis celebrates after a tough struggle. The Giants prevail, 69-62. Players are exhausted, some cramping up continuously during the second half. Playing two games in one day is pretty demanding, but the Giants are elated. They are going to the Hoosier Dome for the Final Four.

10:49 p.m.: Time for J.B. and I to stop at Wendy's for a small frosty.

Midnight: Let's see, that's seven games in two days.

11:30 a.m. (SUNDAY): The end is near. Final day of action. The Hoosier Dome looks even more crowded. Cars are backed up for miles.

12:49 p.m.: Indiana goes up by 18 on Xavier. Looks like a blowout.

1:43 p.m.: Xavier makes comeback. Aaron Williams drives baseline, white and puts down a reverse dunk. The Musketeers are within one, 59-58, with five minutes to play. Hoosier fans look frightened. Could this be another upset?

2 p.m.: Indiana hangs on, 73-70. Rich Walley, a retired Big 10 official and supervisor for the Mid-Continent Conference, looks puzzled by some of the calls. Indiana does not commit a foul for 11 minutes. Xavier fans cry some-cooking. The foul is on the court and half were 10-5, but the Hoosier fans don't care. They can breathe a little easier. Meet me in St. Louis.

2:18 p.m.: Xavier coach Pete Gillen addresses the press. He refuses to slink. "We gave it our best shot," he says. "Indiana will win it all."

2:38 p.m.: Hoosier Dome goes dark. Power outage. Knight continues to ramble despite lights and mikes going off. Somebody in the press room blurts out that the transformer at the substation across the street blew. Power should be on line soon. Knight quips: "Must be Purdue engineers who wired this place." Oklahoma State-Louisville game is suspended with 18:49 to go in the first half.

3:10 p.m.: Back on line. OSU-Louisville game resumes. Cardinal fans are in abundance. They make their presence known.

3:18 p.m.: There's Dick Schultz, head of the NCAA, sitting in the front row behind the press tables at mid-court. Guess who's sitting only four seats down from him? Sean Sutton. Wonder if they had anything to say to each other.

4:08 p.m.: Xavier fan yells at Al McGuire of OSU sitting at the press table at mid-court. "Coach," says the Musketeer diaphan. "Can't you ever learn? It's pronounced, Xavier, not X-avier."

McGuire turns and replies: "I think I got it now."

4:18 p.m.: "Big Country" has Oklahoma State leading by 10, 42-32, but Louisville's Bob Brewer, back from the dead, gets red-hot.

4:48 p.m.: The Midwest Regional is over. Louisville runs away from OSU.

5:15 p.m.: Louisville press conference ends when Dwayne Morton says: "God Bless you all."

5:25 p.m.: Reporters are huddling around all the TV monitors in press room.

"What's all the commotion?" I ask a reporter from Cleveland.

"UCLA is up 19 on Michigan," he responds.

6 p.m.: On the road for home, driving north on I-49 out of Indy. The sun is shining. The air is even warm. Michigan has laid out to 18 by halftime.

7:27 p.m.: Michigan game is being broadcast on 1260-AM, WVED out of Indy.

Jalen Rose's shot is put back in by Jimmy King. Michigan wins in overtime, 86-84. Announcers seem confused about why UCLA coach Jim Harrick is questioning something at the scores table.

7:30 p.m.: I'd thought: It was enjoyable listening to a Michigan game without the visuals.

8:10 p.m.: The Michigan-UCLA game seems to be the talk of the airwaves. Big 10 official Ed High-tower is taking calls from listeners out of KMOX in St. Louis.

UCLA-Michigan game is also topic of conversation on another sports talk show out of Richmond, Va.

8:45 p.m.: Pick up CBA game on 1360-AM out of Fort Wayne.

"Charlie" Thomas hits the "three," screams the announcer.

That's enough basketball for one night.

9:30 p.m.: Stop at McDonald's in Columbus. It's dark and cold, almost eerie outside.
