Shively tops Ray; Mercy routs rival

North Farmington's Emily Shively outlasted Walled Lake Western's Jennifer Ray in the 3,200-meter run Tuesday, but the visiting Raiders lost the girls dual mest, 70-58. Shively won the race in 11:44 but finished one-tenth of a second behind Ray in the 1,600-meter run with a 5:23.9 time.

"She ran two great races," North coach Bill Pinnell said. "She's in real good form compared to last year with all of her injuries. She was two seconds off the school record (11:41.8 by Lisa Rives) in the 3,200."

County crowns hoop contest champs

Jasen Hansen and Adam McCarthy each took different paths to reach a common goal Saturday afternoon.

Saturday aftermoon.

Joining more than 50 competitors at the Third Annual Oakland County Slam-Dunk/3-Point Shootout Contest, presented by the Troy Community Coalition, Hansen of Birmingham Seaholm and McCarthy of Walled Lake Central each walked away with some bragging rights before an overflow crowd at Troy Iligh. Hansen proved to be the county's best dunker, while McCarthy displayed a keen shooting eye by beating all 3-point competitors.

"It feelswood," asid McCarthy.

rif feelsgood," said McCarthy, the Vikings 6-3 senior, who hung on to win the 3-point crown by edging Rochester's Jeremy Multitlett 15-14 in the final round. "Everybody said this was supposed to be a lot of fun, but there was a lot of pressure out there."

"It was great," echoed the 6-5 Hansen of his experiences, which, in addition to claiming the slam-dunk title, included a fourth-place finish in the 3-Point Shoot-out. "We had about 30 Maples (Seaholm students) show up, so it was like a big party. It was awe-some."

Hansen said he got ready for the dunking competition by slam-ming home besketballs on a 9-foot, 5-inch rim at a local outdoor court. While brushing up his slamming skills Hansen said he was also working on his shooting was also working on his shooting range.

"I came here thinking I could really win both events," Hansen said. "I thought my best chance would be in the dunk contest because I was practicing year-round on the 9-5 rims."

Hansen's total of 158.5 outdistanced that of Southfield-Lathrup's Mikey Brown, who finished with 155.5. Troy's Wyki Tyson was third with 153.

Phil Preeds of Rochester Adams, who settled for a seventh-place showing, turned in the most unique dunk of the day. Preeds, a 6-2 senior, turned some heads on his opening attempts when he dipped the baskethal high in the air, slipped out of his T-shirt, and skyed above the basket for a successful two-hand slam.

While Hansen was fine-tuning his highlight reel, McCarthy said he was doing very little out of the ordinary to get ready for the 3-point competition.

"I didn't shoot any more than usual this week," McCarthy said. "I shot enough in practice all year to get ready, I was just hoping to get through the first round so I would get more comfortable."

McCarthy qualified for the finals by scoring 14 out of a possible 30 points in the opening round. His score was three points shy of Mullett's opening-round total of 17.

for preseason practice. That statistic won't win any meets in itself but is an encouraging sign or the Falcons, who were 2-4 in duals and 10th in the WLAA.

"I think we should be in the meets, and we're looking to do our best," Brown said.

Farmington's top contender for a league title is asphomoro Andrea Salyer, who was second in the high jump last year and has best effort of 5-4. Junior Liz Quenneville is another quality jumper.

Senior Maya Sardy is the only letter winner in the long jump, but Brown hopes senior sprinter Kim Coleman can help.

The Faicons lost all-area thrower Becky Washnock to graduation and will rely on junior Erin Phelpa as their best in those events.

Junior Amber Relerson and sophomore Stacy Blachford and the top 100-meter hurdlers but are still learning the technique. Junior Sarah Urevig converted from the 800 last year and became a 300 hurdler.

The shuttle hurdle relay team of Blachford, Relerson, senior Kathi Bache and sophomore Sarah Ringstrom was eighth in the Huron Relays at Eastern Michlean University, Sophomore Colleen Welsing, Coleman and juniors Lauren Tucker, who had played soccer, and Jenny Nicholes compete in the dashes and sprint relays.

Farmington has a pair of good distance runner in sophomores Pam Buha and Dana Goba. They were eighth in the 1,600 and 3,200 at the WLAA, respectively.

Buha also will run the 400 and 800, and the Falcons can add Sara Lidgey to the 1,600 and freshman Ann Marie Grimaldi to the 3,200. Grimaldi was eighth in her event at the Huron Relays.

Quenneville is the top 400 runner and is supported by soph-omore Devon Woodruff. Fresh-man Tracy Finlayson and transfer Gina Latocha are other 800 pros-
