

A long tradition continues

At the banquet: State Rep. Paul Hillegonds (left), R-Holland, and Farmington Hills resident Maynard Feldman, past president of the Oakland County Republican Club, chat during the club's recent 104th banquet at the San Marino Club in Troy. About 500 attended. Hillegonds, co-speaker of the state House, was the keynote speaker. Since 1889, the club has held a banquet every year except for 1945.

But Ginotti said the police were correct to search the car. "The judge ruled that once Dwyer was in the car the danger did not exist," Ginotti said. "But until that gun was found, it was legitimate to search." "That is the basis of the appeal. Ginotti agreed that there was no basis to charge Michael Dwyer with felonious assault. Chief Dwyer had ordered his son to be taken to the Oakland County Jail on the night of the arrest and called in the Michigan State Police to make sure there was no question that the case was being properly handled. "There was never a felonious assault, and the prosecutor agrees," Nebus said. "This (marijuana possession) is the kind of case we handle all the time. It's a 90-day jail (maximum) sentence under city ordinance." But because Michael Dwyer had been convicted of another minor drug-possession offense in 1985, the second offense automatically becomes a "high misdemeanor," punishable by up to two years in prison, Ginotti said. Mary Stiel of the prosecutor's office said a leave to appeal has been filed on the drug charge, while a charge against Michael Dwyer of driving without a license is pending. 21 days to appeal Michael Dwyer, through attorney Larry Kaluzny, has 21 days to answer the appeal. Kaluzny could not be reached for comment. Stiel said Circuit Judge Robert Anderson will likely hear oral arguments before deciding if an appeal of Harris' decision will be heard. Complicating the issue is the fact that Farmington Hills Sgt. Al

Havner — father of the 21-year-old man who called police — made the arrest of Dwyer. Although Sgt. Havner and Chief Dwyer have had disagreements over Havner's job assignment, their sons had not known each other before the July 15 incident, Nebus said. Harris had dropped charges of felonious assault and malicious destruction of property against the younger Havner over a traffic altercation in 1991. Ginotti said he was surprised at the fuss over the case and praised Chief Dwyer's handling of the matter. Nebus said police arrested three youths at the car dealership four hours later, at 4:17 a.m. on July 16, for prowling, and found one of them had been the culprit in a theft at 1:30 a.m. at a nearby party store.
