scribes the moment as "Incredible. It was such a surprise because I was so young and it was my first show. I just remember Fred Ebb (the lyricist for "Flora" and a frequent collaborator) screaming in my ear when they called my name."

The actress' famous parents, Judy Garland and Vincente Minnelli, didn't attend the ceremony, but were listening to the live radio broadcast. (The Tonys were not then televised.) Both were waiting anxiously on the phone for her when she arrived at the Governors' Ball after the awards. "I know they were on pins and needles before," Minnelli says, "and when they got me on the phone, they just went nuts."

Subsequent Tony wins meant just as much, Minnelli says, though each felt a little different, "because of the work leading up to it."

"It was exciting to win for the Winter Garden show," she explains, "because it was so theatrical, and (Bob) Fosse was involved and we'd done the work for the Theatre Fund and raised more money than anyone ever had...Winning for 'The Act,' after all the trials and tribulations of making that show work, was just marvelous."

Minnelli says she understands why the Tony telecasts are a consistent winner in the ratings. "It's
