Kmart and see your daughter on a toy box," Lisa said.

One of Taylor's recent jobs was for a segment on the TV show "Unsolved Mysteries" about a family being reunited whose house had burned down. Location shooting was done at the St. Vincent & Sarah Fisher Center in Farmington Hills, and in the downriver area, in November.

Recalling past assignments, Lisa said, "She did a lot of print work." Taylor was called back not only because she is photogenic but also because, "She is disciplined and able to sit still for a long period of time. She's very comfortable with adults and strangers. She follows directions very well too."

Right now, Kendra Dew of Royal Oak, who has a studio in Berkeley, is taking photos for Taylor's new composite. Dew photographs many kids in the modeling and acting business, both locally and in Los Angeles. She shoots Corber ads and Kmart clothing-tag kids photos.

"Taylor has a real advantage in that she's very versatile. She can look like a 4-year-old or a 6-year-old. She's small for her age. She's petite," Dew said.

'Perfect' features
Asked to comment on Taylor's facial features, she replied, "I almost want to say they're perfect. She has this perfectly structured face. She is very, very refined for a child."

Trolls

Her mother said, "When she hit about 35, she said, 'Isn't it about time you bought me one?'" That's when mom gave her the troll on the skateboard. Her father is a contributor too. Jennifer said, "My dad got me about 20."

What keeps the collection growing is Jennifer's determination to let everyone know what she wants for gifts. Her mother said that at the birthday party for 16 friends, "I asked, 'How did you know about Jennifer's trolls?' and in unison they said, 'She told us!'"

Jennifer has two brothers, John, 10, Nicolas, 6, and a sister, Kristina, 3. "Nicolas has about five trolls," Jennifer said. "He's trying to collect them. His problem is, he never tells anyone."

Jennifer attends Schroeder Elementary in Troy, and sometimes takes her trolls to school. "I put them on my desk and play with them a little. The teachers say, 'Why do you always bring trolls to school?' I say, 'Because I like them.'"

Versatile appearance: Taylor Hosner's last composite, taken at age 5, shows her in a variety of poses.
