

include cherry nut cookies, cherry barbecued chicken wings, stuffed cherry turkey, and cherry pasta salad.

Last year an estimated 20,000 people enjoyed this National Cherry Festival Opening Day event. The revenue generated enabled a Traverse City student to continue her studies under the Food Management Program at Northwestern Michigan College.

The National Cherry Festival is proud to announce the addition of an Arts and Crafts Fair to their roster this year. The Fair will be held on July 4 from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Approximately 65 booths will be set up lining Union Street between Front Street and Grandview Parkway, which will provide an ideal backdrop for this exhibit, given the close proximity of the Festival Open Space plus a view of the bay.

"We have had a tremendous response to this First Annual Fair," according to Nora Hamilton, Marketing Director for the Downtown Development Authority. "We have received nearly 200 requests for applications and the forms of art work being sent in for jurying represent a wide range of artistic expression. The show will be juried with the intent of having an extensive range of mediums on display."

MUSIC, MOVEMENT, MARCHING— Professional drum and bugle corp will step lively during the spirited competition set for July 8.

Classes capture Leelanau soul

Glen Arbor, Michigan—

Each summer the Glen Arbor Art Association hosts workshops taught by visiting and resident artists of Lake Street Studios in Glen Arbor. Artists and non-artists of all ages are welcome in these classes.

Surrounded by dunes and pine forests and wedged between Glen Lake and Lake Michigan, this dramatic landscape has its own definitive spirit — creative, casual and inspirational. Through its programs, the Glen Arbor Art Association endeavors to give artists and patrons of the arts the chance to capture for themselves a taste of the sights, sounds and soul of the Glen Lake area.

This summer's schedule of events includes:

— Women's Week, June 28-July 1, morning yoga, movement, focus groups, sketching in the dunes, writing and relaxation. Tuition is $200.

— July 12-15, Jewelry Making Workshop, tuition $120.

— July 19-23, Finding One's Way With Paint, tuition $150.

— Aug. 12-13, Painting Florals Workshop, tuition $60.

The association also sponsors the Manitou Music Festival, a celebration of music from folk to classical, performed by professional musicians in various idyllic nooks and crannies of the Leelanau Peninsula.

For more information, call the association at 616-334-6112.
