

Marshall Offers Many Antiques Experiences

With over 14 antique shops in the Marshall area, antique shopping has become a vehicle for attracting tourism to the city. The organizers of the first annual "Marshall Antiques Market" have decided to take advantage of Marshall and its resources.

April 18 kicked off the first of several markets to take place during the year. With over 150 vendors and 4,000 people in attendance, the market was a huge success. "The response was great! It's good to realize that dealers from all over the country believe as we do that the Calhoun County Fairgrounds in Historic Marshall, Michigan is the perfect location for this outstanding antiques market," Ted Tear stated, promoter of the events.

Dealers from more than eight states are participating in the market including Michigan, Indiana, Illinois Wisconsin, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania and Florida. The dealers are intrigued by the fact that the fairgrounds was once the contemplated site of the Michigan state capitol. They are also impressed with Marshall's huge National Historic Landmark District, antique and specialty shops, charming bed and breakfasts and diverse restaurants all in a city of only 6,900 population.

The market dates for the remainder of the year are July 17 and 18, September 18 and 19, and October 16 and 17. The hours are as follows: Saturdays and Sundays - 8:00-4:00 p.m. Admission is $3.00 per person. Visitors will find plenty of free parking and quality food concessions on the grounds.

After visitors are finished viewing the antiques at the market, they can venture into the entire city of Marshall and shop at the numerous other antique and specialty locations. For more information on the antique and specialty shops, restaurants, motels/B&B's, and other attractions, call the Marshall Area Chamber of Commerce at 1/800-877-5163.
