

Get into the action with sports shots

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Whether it's the family volleyball game in the back yard or the major league baseball game at the stadium, sports photography can reward you with many impact-filled and memorable shots.

So "go for the gold" with your camera. Here are some tips to help you get good sports photographs.

As in all good photography, fill the frame for impact. So when photographing sports, a telephoto lens is needed. Use one that will bring the action in close. For the Little League game down at the corner lot, a moderate 135mm lens will do. But for the major leagues, you'll need a major league lens of 200mm to 400mm in length.

You'll require an action-stopping shutter speed of at least 1/500 second so fast film is in order.

Use a 400 ASA film in either color or black and white.

The key to good sports photography is to anticipate the action and capture the spontaneity of the game.

In the photograph shown here taken during a Detroit Tiger/Boston Red Sox game, Tiger Kirk Gibson was on third base eager to score.

Anticipating a play at home plate, I predetermined the exposure using 1/1000 second and pre-focused my 200mm lens on home base. By keeping my left eye open,

I could follow the action of the game and be ready to snap what I hoped would be an action-filled picture.

Sure enough, the play at home happened and I got the shot. As you can see, Gibson was safe. Only by pre-focusing, determining the exposure ahead of time and anticipating the action, was I rewarded with this memorable photograph.

Other sports work similarly. Get to know the game and anticipate the action. Use your concentration and be prepared to take a couple rolls of film to get the few shots you want.

Remember that sports photography is not only concerned with freezing the moment of victory or defeat, but also of capturing the spirit of the game.

Athletic action: A fast shutter speed, predetermining the exposure and anticipating the action all combined to reward Monte Nagler with this action-filled shot of Kirk Gibson safely sliding into home base.
