work. Very good artists had sub-mitted work," said George N'Namdi, owner of the G.R. N'Namdi Gallery in Birmingham, who was juror for the event.

"It really is a celebration of Michigan artists. It speaks to some of the quality of work produced here. The work is creative. It has a uniqueness about it... I was very pleased with it."

Three hundred artists from 57 communities in Michigan submitted entries to the competition. The show features 54 works by 28

For the first time in the event, a For the first time in the event, a three-dimensional piece was awarded first place (a $1,000 prize). Carolyn Lautzenheiser of Royal Oak won the honor for her cast-iron architectural sculpture, "Apparition." The sculpture looks like a little building, Its different textures and gently shifting shades become apparent as it is viewed from different angles and sides.
