More supporters included Dr. Conrad and Lynda Giles, Dr. Joseph and Nancy Jacobson, David and Gloria Leader, David and Doreen Hermelin, Joe and Sue Orley, Paul and Marlene Borman, patrons along with Alan and Lois Freeman, Bernard and Elaine Hartman, Sheldon Rose, Jerry and Elissa Schostak, Paul and Susan Karr, and Susan Hersberg Adelson, M.D., who is nationally known.

The Detroit Children's Research Fund offers hope for juvenile diabetes through the work of Prof. Irwin Cohen, who produced a cure for diabetes in mice. His T-cell vaccination is being tested around the world for autoimmune diseases. Institute research is conducted for cerebral palsy, Down syndrome, cancer, leukemia and other childhood diseases.

The week before the dinner, Paul and Marlene Borman held a "Parlor Meeting" and raised $85,000 for the Weizmann Institute. At the annual dinner, more than $100,000 was raised for the institute.

Pearls for two

It's Pearls for Project HOPE and the Understudies of Wayne State University. Both organizations are celebrating their 30th anniversary in October. The Understudies is a group of 80 women, who have devoted themselves to raising funds for graduate theater students at the Hilberry Theatre of Wayne State University in Detroit. Over the past 30 years the group has raised in excess of $1 million to support the young actresses and actors, as well as student directors, managers, costumers and others who hope to make their career in the theater.

This year the women will celebrate their 30th anniversary at the President's Preview on Saturday.

Guests for opening night will assemble at the Whitney for a gourmet dinner and then return to the Hilberry for a performance of "Banana Ridge," a British farce that takes place during the 1930s.

Working to make the theater evening a success are co-chairwomen Sue Nine, Louise Scott and Mary Jane Bostick, Olga Dworin of Farmington Hills, Pat Martin, and Katherine Wasserfallen of Southfield.

Project HOPE

The women's Division for Project HOPE will celebrate its Pearl Anniversary Friday, Oct. 15, at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham. Planning this special dinner dance are Carole Larson Wendzel and Vicki Kulis.

The evening will include a salute to past presidents who have led this organization, the only one of its kind in the country.

Paul Nine, as a member of the now defunct "Men's Division" for Project HOPE, will act as the emcee and help pay tribute to the women who have raised money to
