Has Building Heritage

America has a rich heritage in building. Coming to the Atlantic coast, the craftsmen of Colonial days brought with them from England the traditions and the taste of the English builders, and with the materials which came to their hands, developed a type of home which is as thoroughly American as a mince pie.

And the excellence with which those craftsmen did their work is attested both by the fact that the architect of today often goes to the work of the carpenter of yesterday for inspiration and guidance.

Capitol Compel Rain

Some success in precipitating rain-fall has been had by spraying sand in the air from airplanes, and in some instances rain has followed violent explosions arranged for this purpose. According to the confession of one man who called himself a rainmaker, his success was due to the fact that his rheumatism told him when to expect rain and gave him about three days to prepare for rain, which he promised only when he believed it would come naturally.

Bridge Built by Nature

The Natural Bridge is in Rockbridge county, Virginia. It was left by the collapse of the remainder of the roof of a tunnel forced by water percolating through a flat or fissure athwart the stream. The tunnel thus formed was gradually enlarged until all the water of the stream was diverted from the stream bed below the joint of ingress, leaving a bridge. It has a span of 90 feet and is from 50 to 100 feet wide.

Steel Cars for Japan

Alarmed at the great loss of life in the recent wreck of the Tokyo-Shimonoseki Express near Hiroshima, the Japanese Imperial railways have decided to abandon wooden passenger coaches as rapidly as possible. The railways will build 720 all-steel coaches during the coming fiscal year.
