A History of African-American Artists, From 1792 to the Present, by artist Romare Bearden and journalist Harry Henderson. This volume, completed by Henderson after Bearden's death in 1988, includes the works of 50 artists and is illustrated with more than 400 black and white illustrations and 61 color reproductions of work known and not seen before in this country. Kohn calls it the "most in-depth survey of African-American artists to date," and "an incredible achievement."

$65 hardcover. Pantheon.
Frank Lloyd Wright: The Masterworks by Bruce Brooks Pfeiffer is jammed with sketches, drawings and "magnificent" models of 38 renowned buildings designed by Wright, the quintessentially Midwestern architect. The book also contains renderings of lost masterpieces and some local favorites. Wright's architecture "continues to amaze, stun and be copied around the world," Keramedjian says.

$65 list price; $54 at Barnes & Noble.
The Secret History* by Donna Tartt has fortunately been released in paperback in time for the gift-giving season, for a mere $6.99. In this amazing novel, Tartt recounts the story, through the mind of one of its members, of a group of precocious students at a Vermont liberal arts college who murder one of their own. This is mystery heightened with huge doses of literary grace. Ivy Books.

This is my choice for a great gift. The Secret History, paperback: Ivy Books. $6.99.
