information about classes or day care.

Keeping a dog or cat healthy and happy often involves more than regular trips to the vet. Marilyn Runde, owner of Country Pet Salon at 25658 Ford Road in Canton, says that since the groomers she employs have an average of 17 years experience, they are able to identify problems pets may be having through the grooming process.

"Since a pet is here at least three and a half hours and we go over them very well, the groomers have identified skin problems and even urinary tract infections that an owner may not have noticed," Runde says.

She recommends that most dogs, indoor and outdoor, be groomed every two months and takes extra care with geriatric pets.

"It's important that we put as little stress on the animal as possible and even more important for older pets," she says.

Prices for grooming range according to size and condition of pets. The salon offers gift certificates for the pet or the pet-lover in your life. Contact 416-0320 to arrange a professional doggy do or kitty coiffure at Country Pet.

In the past few years, pet super-mart have cropped up around the metro area that carry everything for pets: toys, food, bedding, leashes and furniture. Dan McCarney, manager of Pet Supplies Plus at 30730 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills (phone 932-3113), says that "People definitely buy a lot for their pets around the holidays."

"Keeping a dog or cat healthy and happy often involves more than regular trips to the vet."

Pet Supplies Plus stocks all kinds of gift-wrapped and boxed toys for pets including Christmas cookies for dogs, collars with sleigh bells and catnip-filled mice in stockings for cats.

On December 12, from 12 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Farmington Hills store, pet owners can get their Rover or Snowball snapped with Santa. McCarney says that Santa doesn't discriminate against any member of the animal kingdom — "You can get a picture of your lizard or monkey with Santa."

These are just a few ideas to honor the pet in your life this time of year. In this season of love, don't forget the animals that love you so much!
