'93 trends, memories are food for thought epending on which side of the fence you were sifting on, 1993 was the "year of opposites" for foodies. Vegetarians claim an 8-10 per-cent increase while the beef industry claims to be for foodies. Vegetarians caum and 3-10 percent increase while the beef industry claims to be enjoying a renaissance.

Bistro fiare again tops the charts, and while the folks at "Bon Appetit" magazine claim the French top the bistro trend in 1993, my desk is littered with Trattoria cookbooks from Italy.
The trend toward comfort food has opened a door ton new cuisine dubbed "country American."
Momm's chicken casserole of the 1960s is now
trendily being monikered as "chicken fried steak."
Plain old mashed potatoes have fallen from grace.
To be in tune with the 1990s, you have to add roasted garlicand a touch of dill. It's actually easier to find jicima at the vegetable market than it is to find a rutubaga.

Thank goodness all those trendy greens have wilted into oblivion not just because they were so expensive and tasted about as exciting as they sounded (i.e. mache), but how many folks do you know who could actually discern the arugula from the frisee?

Memories
Looking back at 1993 brought fond memories of food. Remember my trip to New Orleans and the subsequent column on those crazy Cajuas and their desire to enteraptish for breakfast, lunch and dinner? You told me in no uncertain terms that my tastes could be shoved where the sun didn't shire.
I didn't know whom to believe when a reader with the last name MacDonald chaimed my recipe for Scottish shortbread was the best she had ever tasted while the next call came from a MacDonnell who swore at me in Gaelic because! wasted this time and money making "the worst shortbread on earth."
A tear came to your eye as well as mine when! I wrote my Mother's Day column sharing the secrets of Momma's kitchen, and then we loughed together when! mentioned Aunt Vicky's 'homemade' jam.
This year the Janes Gang switched from slurping down 'yuppie chardonnay' to experiencing a whole new taste sensation with red wine. The best part about switching from white to red was that the government actually approved!

Chef's favorites
Thebig question I continue to be asked in line at the grocery store or while teaching a cooking class is "what's my favorite restaurant." to which I always respond "what type, how much do you want to spend and when are you taking me?
For the record, my favorites are Giovanni's in southwest Detroit for regional Italian followed by Bruschetta in Novi, Opus One in downtown Detroit or The Lark in West Bloomfield when money and time is of little object, Chez Pierre New Orleans in Bochester (for when I choose to eat cray-fish) and Dos Pessos in Belleville or Evie's Tamales in Mexicantown for something south of the border and not in a bag.
The best places to grocery shop are the Shopping Contermarkets, Papa-Joe's in Rochester, the Kayama Shoten for Oriental and Chimento's Italian Grocery (both in Livonin), La Colomena/Honey Bee Market in Mexicantown, and Hirt's and Rophel Spice in the Eastern Market and Royaland and the proceeding the content of the Content of the Colomena Chimento's Colomena Chimena Colomena Chimena Colomena Chimena Ch

Colomentrones pees anirect in Mexication, and Hir's and Raphael Spice in the Eastern Marketarea.

For really trendy foodstuffs you can spenda paycheck at any of the Merchant of Vinostores and not even venture near the beer and wine. When it comest o bakeries and bread you can't hold a can'dle to the folks at the Little Prince in Birmingham (their croissants are to die forl), the baguettes at Baking by the Auers in Southfield, the bagels from the Detroit Bagel Factory, especially when they're hot from the oven, and the cheesy-whole wheat bread my Panasonic Bread Maker churas out of demand. Warning, if you're contemplating the purchase of a bread maker you better invest in a treadmill tool Technology has made it just too darn easy, and too darn good!

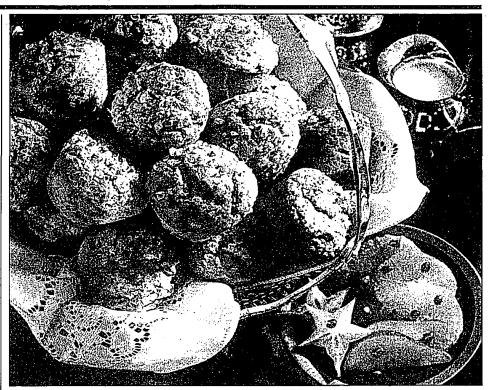

Last, but certainly not least, when it comes to keeping my kitchen up to par with all the necessary equipment, tools, gadgets and cookware, the folks at Williams-Sonoma and Crate and Barrel have the West Coast trands locked up, but when it comes to the best stocked, most knowledgeable you-name-it-and-they-have-it kind of a store, the folks at Kitchen Glamor should take a well deserved bow. Hope you have a prosperous, happy and healthy New Year! Bon Apetit!

By the time Jan. 1 rolls around most of us have had it with holiday entertaining. After nearly a month of splurging on party foods, it can be frustrading to create a menu which is appropriate for one last holiday fling.
If you consult a culinary professionnl, they'll surely tell you the casiest way to entertain on New Year's Day is to host a feative holiday brunch. Not only is it the easiest, but it's also the most versatile because of the time of day, generally 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. With a little help from friends, you'll be amazed at how simple planning a New Year's Day brunch can be.

Annabel Cohen, owner of Annabel's Catering in Southfield, recommends a light menu.
"We're just getting over a few weeks of heavy eating and there are many wonderful dishes that can be made with fruits and vegetables, and made ahead of time for a holiday brunch," shesaid.
Cohen describes hor food style as "American gournet with a Mediterranean twist," and it

Busy mom likes quick, one-pot meals

Between work, shopping for gifts and visiting with friends and family, it is a wonder that anyone eat properly and liduring the holiday senson. Lisa Rice of Bloomfield seems to have every-thing under control, which is incredible since sho gave birth to the rescond child in October. Lisa's biggest problem is trying to prepare something quick for her 2-year-old son Andrew Chew She wanted something she could throwing pot, and and have to worry too much about like herelamchowder.

She wanted something she could throwina pot, and not have toworry too much about like herdam chowder.

Since it is one pot recipe, she really likes it, but is concerned about all the fat. Our make over reduced the amount of fat from a whopping 16.4 grams of fat perserving.

Chef Boyardee has some great canned macaroni and heese. Ithnsonly four grams of fat per If-ounce can, and is very cheesy. Luke it for lunch when I don't have time to cook. It also great for comping trips. Chef Boyardee also has cheese tortellini in a can. This is also wonder full because it has has only two grams of fat per 15-ounce can. and is very cheesy. Luke it for lunch when I don't have time to cook. It also great for camping trips. Chef Boyardee also has cheese tortellini in a can. This is also wonderful because it has has only two grams of fat per 15-ounce can. List is also wonderful because it has has only two grams of fat per 15-ounce can. I chefie it is usually right next to the section that Meijer's, it is usually right next to the section that has all the powdered gravy and sauce mixes. Look for a man if the it, try the bottled gravy by Pillabury. It contains zero grams of fat per two ounces for the chicken flavor. It is the same gravy, it just has tho wenter already added.
