Oakland University's School of

The program, in cooperation with Ameritech Services, is directed by Tom Lauer and Al Lederer of the School of Business Administration's Decision and Information Sciences Department

There are 20 Ameritech employees participating in the pro-gram at Ameritech facilities in Oak Park. The employees range from 7 to 20 years of service.

They're taking courses over three-semesters that cover topics in sys-tems analysis, systems design and the programming of an infor-mation system.

The OU courses incorporate use of integrated CASE (Computer Aided Systems Engineering) tools and other state-of-the-art tech-nology. Ameritech Services has neartneshing with universities in noiogy. Ameritech Services has partnerships with universities in Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois and In-diana to provide the same kind of educational experience for its em-educational experience for its employees.

Several factors made the Oak-land program appealing to Ameritech. For example, OU has a long standing program in information systems. And it currently requires more information systems education in its MBA program than any other MBA program in the United States, Louer and Lederer say.

OU's information systems faculty was ranked first in Michigan and 40th in the nation in information systems research productivities.
