Faith Proved
A Source Of Help For Earthquake Victims

A disaster can bring us back to our real priorities. The Los Angeles earthquake early this year, like last year's midwestern floods, brought out the best in many people.

It was neighbor helping neighbor, with food, blankets, clothing, money as they slept in parks; homes or fearful of returning to their damaged homes while the aftershocks continued. Many turned to faith as a source of help, along with government assistance.

A touching sight was that of a mother's shelter set up by a chain link fence at a hospital park, by a family who had watched only what they needed to return to their communities; blankets, coats, shoes. However, they considered their faith of equal importance, for on that fence they had hung a picture of Jesus. As we all should, they believed that God will watch over us, if we let Him.

Do not let us be the only ones who are thankful to God for His love and mercy.
