

Man about town

The colors of nature dawn in the boardroom. Watch for one, two and three-button suits in earthy shades of brown, wheatfield beige, olive green, and deep ocean blue.

The "member of the club" look is achieved with a striped tie, two-toned shoes, and double-breasted blazer. Linen is the look for spring and summer.

When a shirt and tie isn't required, try a band-collared shirt under a jacket. The key to business casual is "casual" not "sloppy" according to Colby McWilliams at Neiman Marcus.

Arlene Goldstein of Parisian said details count in casual dressing. "Wear a tailored belt, the right socks, and well-maintained shoes to pull off the casual look," she said.

In footwear, look for blunted toes, spectator wing tip oxfords, monk straps, loafers and bucks. Bryan Gutierrez of Kenneth Cole in the Somerset Collection, said the European split toe (a center seam) is a classic touch.

Easy does it: Armani offers this plaid jacket over a banded collared shirt and drawstring pants, an important silhouette for spring at Neiman Marcus, Troy.
