A Communication

Have you heard the good that ecclesiastical officials have at last declared that church war and interdenominational strife shall Habermehl went over to Cahada cease, and that hereafter in small towns, or suburban communities where one church can best do the work, or where there is room but for two, those churches shall be allowed in peace to do that work, not having five or six to struggle, quarrel, dwindle and die. Further that eventually the churches shall not be known as Methodist, Pres byterian, Baptist, Congregational etc., but shall all bear a common title, with one common form of government and one central authority.

We have long telt the need of such a movement here in Farmington. It looks now as though the time might come when in Farming-ton we shall have one comfortably large central church, a community institutional church, open to every next weenessay and Truis-say and munity, physical, social and moral over the city. Mrs. McGee is included in the invitation.

This is the community's opportunity. This is the church's opportunity. tunity, also. Let the two

We want, we soon must have, a place where our young people ca congregate in the evenings for recreation, for exercise for reading, or instruction; where they can meet under proper chaperonage, and where there exist no harmful associations. We need club rooms reading rooms, rest parlors a gym nasium. What institution can better look after these things than a church wide awake to commun are well rated in the commercial ity interests. What church will reports and state that they have that be, you ask? Farmington's ity interests. What church will that be, you ask? Farmington's church, nothing more or less, interdenominational, broad of creed, practical in all its workings.

Let the people rise up and demand such a church. Church reform, as well as political reformmust eventually come from the people. Officialdom, political or exclesiastical, is, of necessity, conservative and must wait for the mandate of the people. If Farmington needs a church such as has been described, demand it, and it is yours. is vours.
