Phone thief picks wrong number

BY SUZ BUCK STAFF WRITER

A woman picked the wrong phone to get caught allegedly stealing a cellular phone Wednesday — the Southfield Police station.

A Gloucester, Ohio, man came to the police station to file an accident report and placed his cellular phone on a lobby table.

He realized a short time later that it had disappeared and so had the female stranger who had been near him.

The woman had gone into the first-floor restroom. The man's cellular telephone number was dialed and a ringing sound was heard resonating from within the bathroom.

When she emerged, officers asked her what was ringing while she was in the bath-room. The woman said it was her pager, Harris said.

They placed another call. This time the sound came from her coat pocket.

The next call? "You're under arrest," Harris said.
