to fill with the loss of four (first-team All-Area) players, but he worked his tail off all season long and did an outstanding job," Stevenson coach Walt Barrett said.

Dietrich scored the game-winning goal in overtime in the state Class A final in a 2-1 win against Troy.

He is a first-team All-Observer baseball pick as an outfielder.

"If this were baseball, Mark hit a grand slam in the bottom of the ninth when we were down three in the deciding game (against Troy)," Barrett said. "That's what he meant to us this year."

Jason Roy, midfielder, Stevenson: The 6-foot-4, 190-pound co-captain moved up to the forward position for the state playoffs and averaged one point per game. He finished with seven goals and seven assists.

"Just a fearless, gutsy leader," Barrett said. "He is one of the most intense players ever to play for Stevenson."

Roy assisted on Dietrich's game-winning goal in the state finals and had the game-winner in a 1-0 semifinal win over Grand Haven.

Tony Moscoutis, midfielder, Redford CC: Moscoutis scored 17 goals and added eight assists for the Shamrocks. His scoring output more than tripled from a year ago when he had five goals to go with eight assists.

"Tony was pretty much our go-to guy; he has tremendous skill with a sweet touch," CC coach Dana Drauccl said. "We wanted to direct the offense to Tony; he was like the choreographer of the offense."

Matt Sarkesian, midfielder, Salem: Sarkesian makes his second appearance on the all-Observer team. One of the area's best all-round players, he totaled five goals and eight assists this season.

"He's one of the best players at distributing the ball that Salem has ever had," said McCarthy. "And he's very strong defensively; he was always able to get back and make key tackles."

Mike Martin, midfielder, Redford CC: Martin scored nine goals for the Shamrocks, some coming at the most opportune times. He had the game winner in a 2-1 win over Birmingham Brother Rice and both goals in a 2-0 win over U-D Jesuit in the regional semifinal. He also contributed 11 assists.

"Somehow, someway, Mike would score huge goals for us," Drauccl said. "His game against U-D was maybe the best game I've seen a high school player play."

Jason Bennett, midfielder, Canton: Bennett was valuable for the Chiefs wherever he played.

A midfielder for much of the regular season, Canton coach Don Smith switched him to marking defender for the last couple of weeks and throughout the playoffs. He finished the season with one goal and 11 assists, and a berth on the all-WLAA team.

"He was definitely a very heady ball player," said Smith, whose team reached the regional final before losing 1-0 to Stevenson. "When I needed him on defense, he did a great job. He's a big kid; you couldn't take him off the ball. And he's excellent in the air. He really could play anywhere."

Scott Babinski, defender, Stevenson: The 6-3, 180-pound co-captain came up big in several games this season on the offensive end, scoring 11 goals and contributing 13 assists.

"He is one of the most skilled players around who led by example and led by class," Barrett said. "He was our iceman on the backline — solid, skilled and intelligent. His disciplined play rubbed off on others."

Matt Ammons, defender, Canton: There was nothing too flashy about Ammons. He just did his job, which was marking the opponent's best midfielder.

Ammons scored just one goal, but it was a memorable one: He headed in the game-winner against Plymouth Salem in the state district tournament.

"He's very quick for a big kid (6-foot-5)," said Smith. "And he's very coachable. I'd like to have 22 like him. He always gave 150 percent. He was just such a consistent player."

Not just on the soccer pitch, either. Ammons was the top scholar-athlete in the school with a 4.0 grade-point average.

Dave George, defender, Churchill: A three-year varsity starter, George helped Churchill reach the Class A quarterfinals and finish with a 15-7 record. He sparked a defense that allowed just 1.23 goals per game. George also served as team captain and was voted MVP by his teammates.

Eric O'Neil, goalkeeper, Stevenson: The 6-3 O'Neil allowed just one goal during the state tournament and took part in 12 shutouts, including six straight in the playoffs.

"He was a solid member on the back for Stevenson," Barrett said. "Clutch defensive situations — the difficult high crosses, corner kicks and throw-ins — is where he excelled."

Tim Carson, goalkeeper, Garden City: Meet one of the most unheralded soccer players in Observerland.

Garden City struggled to score goals, so it figures Carson stood out when the Cougars won.

Of their eight wins, six came by shouts. Carson's other shutout came in a 0-0 tie.

Carson had a 1.5 goals against average; he stopped 78 percent of shotsand started all 19 games, playing all but seven minutes.

■ 'Coach (Chuck Apap) just told me to step up and be a leader. I knew we had to take some time off the clock in the fourth quarter.'

Frank Stanford
—Western quarterback

Western, which played brilliantly in its final five games following a 24–0 loss to Westland John Glenn in the Western Lakes title game, used the big play for a 14–3 halftime lead.

On the game's fourth play from scrimmage, Stanford ran 50 yards for a touchdown to cap a 66–yard drive. The fleet–footed junior faked a handoff to Johnson and took off up the middle, eventually sidestepping Darrin Zahnpfenning at the Stevenson 5–yard line en route to the end zone. Senior Pat Gibson added the first of his four extra points with 9:57 remaining in the first quarter for a 7–0 lead.

Stevenson (12–1) responded with a 13–play, 61–yard drive that resulted in Erik Gibala's 29–yard field goal with 3:46 left in the opening period. The Titans then threatened to seize the lead late in the second quarter, only to be turned away by junior Tim Dluzynski's tremendous defensive play.

Dluzynski forced Stevenson quarterback Pat Collins to fumble during a third–and–eight play from the Western 15. Gary Butske picked up the loose ball and scampered 38 yards to the Stevenson 44.

It appeared the game would stay 7–3 going into halftime, but senior defensive back Paul Merandi would make what Stevenson head coach Rick Bye called the key play in the game late in the second quarter.

Merandi came off the left side and blocked Dave Dunlap's punt at the Stevenson 5–yard line. The ball sailed into the air and senior Jason Brewer recovered it in the end zone to give a Western a 13–3 advantage with just 27 seconds to go.

Johnson plowed in from 5 yards out with 6:49 left in the third quarter for a 20–3 lead. Gibson's PAT made it 21–3, but Stevenson quickly answered with back–to–back touchdown drives to steal the momentum.

Collins (11 of 26, 164 yards) found Steele on a 10–yard TD toss just over three minutes later and Collins connected with Joe Alls on the two–point conversion, closing the gap to 21–11. Collins then threw another scoring strike – this one to 23 yards to Dan Valik with 7:39 left capping an 87–yard drive – and Gibala's extra point left the score 21–18.

But Stanford engineered a seven–play, 54–yard drive that chewed up over three minutes and ended with his 6–yard TD run with 2:05 left. Johnson later added a 10–yard scoring run with 52 seconds remaining to seal the victory.

"Coach (Apap) just told me to step up and be a leader," Stanford said. "I knew we had to take some time off the clock in the fourth quarter."

It was an amazing playoff run for Apap's explosive squad. The Warriors breezed through Battle Creek Central, Brighton and Rockford by a combined 137–62 before knocking off the Titans, who averaged over 31 points during the regular season.
