The first fund raising event Conley organized was held a couple weeks ago and netted $1,500, but that amount is only a small portion of the anticipated 2-year bill for medical treatments which is expected to exceed $100,000.

"The funds are dwindling because she is in need of so much medication," Conley said, adding that the goal of the most recent fund raiser is $50,000.

"Jazz for Jenny" will be held Friday from 6 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Muirwood Complex Clubhouse, 35055 Muirwood Drive in Farmington Hills (off Grand River Ave. between Drake and Halsted).

Tickets cost $10 in advance and $12 at the door for the event which features a live performance at 8 p.m., cash bar and food.

Friday's fund raiser will not be the last for Jenny. A blood drive is scheduled for Jan. 19 and donations will benefit Jenny as well as others in need of blood.

"It's a lot for a 12-year-old and in spite of all of it, she's been very strong," Conley said.

For information or tickets, call Conley at (810) 426-0845. To make a donation, checks can be made payable to Jenny Babb Leukemia Fund, 24326 Verdant Drive, Farmington Hills 48335. All donations are tax deductible.

Police seek 2 suspects in robbery

BY JENNIFER PLACINTO STAFF WRITER

Farmington Police continue to search for two masked robbers who escaped with nearly $2,700 in cash from Kentucky Fried Chicken in Farmington Friday.

The armed robbery comes just two weeks after a robbery at a Kentucky Fried Chicken in Beverly Hills.

According to Farmington Police reports, "similar circumstances occurred in this robbery," however, Farmington officer Jim Madigan added, "They're similar, but there's no connection we've been able to draw."

The Farmington robbery occurred around 10:30 a.m. after a cook at the restaurant, located at 20740 Farmington Road, heard a doorbell ringing and opened the back door. The employee was expecting a delivery, but instead was met by a gunman masked by black pantsy-hose pulled over his head, police said.

The assailant placed a blue steel revolver to the victim's stomach and ordered him to the floor, according to reports. The cook struggled with the perpetrator and was taken to a restroom in the back of the building where he was again ordered to the floor and emptied. The gunman then placed cardboard boxes over him.

In the meantime, a second robber, also masked by black pantsy-hose, entered the restaurant and approached a female employee who was preparing food. The offender shouted at the 23-year-old woman, ordering her to open the safe, police said.

The store manager, a 27-year-old woman who was working at the front counter, told the unarmed robber that the employee was not capable of opening the safe.

After the robber ordered the younger employee to lay face down on the floor, he told the manager to open the safe. The manager explained that the safe was time-delayed and she would not be able to open it for about 15 minutes.

When the perpetrator ordered the manager to her knees, she told him the money was not in the safe, since employees were preparing to take the funds to the bank.

The robber forced her head to the ground, grabbed the money off the counter and ordered the manager to put "all" of the money in the bag, police reports stated. She added $100 from the register.

The unarmed offender took the store key and broke the telephone. He ordered the two women to stand up and both robbers placed them inside the store cooler and shut the door without locking it.

After approximately one minute, the store manager peered out. Seeing that the robbers had left, she located the cook and ran to the Mobile Gas station just south of the restaurant where she asked the clerk to call 9-1-1.

At that time, she noticed a Farmington police officer across the road and informed him of the robbery.

The officer responded to the scene and located a witness who said he saw two black males driving erratically eastbound on Chensley. The suspects could not be located.

The armed perpetrator was described as a 5-foot-10 black male in his '20s, weighing 200 pounds and wearing dark pants, blue clothing, and black gloves. The unarmed robber is described as a 5-foot-1 black male in his '20s, weighing 130 pounds and wearing dark pants, black gloves, a red plaid coat with a hood.

of it. "Every time I think it can't, it gets worse," he said of the murders. "What you did is unimaginable to me. The agony these people (victims) went through."

Judge Howard said he had not seen a more cruel murder in his years on the bench adding that Cayce had violated the sanctity of the Bovair home, the women's bodies and killed them without remorse.

"You give strength to the argument for capital punishment," he said.

Judge Howard then ordered that Cayce serve a life sentence without parole, the mandatory punishment for first-degree murder under Michigan law.

Oakland County Assistant Prosecutor Lisa Madzia, who will also prosecute the case against the man charged with the murder, George Tyrone Davis, 24, said she agreed with the judge's assessment of the seriousness of this crime.

"Cases like this show that the death penalty should be the law in Michigan," she said.

The emotions carried outside of the court room where the uncle and brothers of the victims, Max Jozwiak, got into a heated exchange with Jennifer Nolan's family members, blaming them in part for the deaths because of her former relationship with Cayce.

Craig Nolan had to be restrained by Oakland County Sheriff's deputies after he became enraged by Jozwiak's accusations.

But the victims' brother and son, Joe Bovair, comforted Jennifer Nolan, who had first told police about Cayce's confession to her that he had killed the two women. Joe Bovair said he did not blame her.

Her father Lou said that other than Jozwiak, the Bovairs have been very understanding.

"They've been very helpful through it all," he said.

Cayce is scheduled to go on trial for the abduction, rape, assault and attempted murder of Jennifer Nolan on Jan. 10. Although the outcome would make no difference in his sentence and Madzia is willing to drop the charge to save the cost and trouble of a trial, Cayce can demand the trial.

No date has been set for the Davis trial, but Madzia said she expects it to begin in late January.
