

Farmington police honor citizens for their public safety alertness

Heroic actions by two people were recognized with civilian citations during the Farmington Public Safety awards ceremony April 15.

William Willson was recognized for coming to the aid of a woman who was attacked by a purse snatcher outside Farmer Jack in the Crossroads Plaza Sept. 27.

After hearing the woman scream, Willson chased the suspect — who dropped the purse — into a wooded area.

The suspect eluded Willson, but he was able to give the description to police and later identified him after the assailant was arrested.

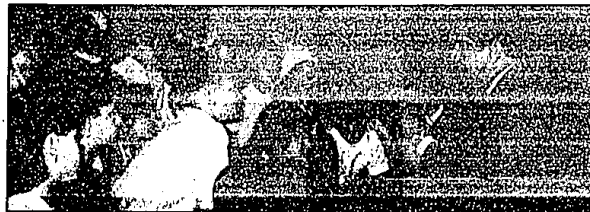

Florence Kelly White was honored for comforting a pregnant woman involved in a traffic accident on Nine Mile and Grand River Jan. 17.

The woman was four-months pregnant and experiencing severe abdominal pain.

Public safety officers were able to give her oxygen but had to leave to help others injured in the crash. White volunteered to stay with the woman and helped her remain calm until she was transported to Botsford Hospital where she was treated and released.

"This type of involvement and concern is what makes a community safe and a welcome place to live," said Gary Goss, director of public safety.

Earth Day chat

Let's talk: Andy Aho, environmental outreach and strategy director for Ford Motor Co, speaks to St. Fabian students on Earth Day April 22.
