TOO EXPENSIVE A SOUVENIR

Denomination of Note Was a Little Larger Than Mr. Vernon Had Bargained For.

When William T. Vernon decided to give up his position as register of the treasury he wanted to take away with him as a souvenir of his public service the first bank note on which he had put his signature. All the money issued in the form of bank notes while he had been register, such as a matter of law, his signature on it.

The money, having been put in circulation, says the Popular Magazine, had been sent back to the treasury, redeemed by new notes, and then had been marked for destruction in the macerator. Therefore, the only way he could get the old note he desired was to redeem it in real money.

Having been informed by the treasurer's office that he could get the first note he had ever signed if he would call for it and redeem it with new money, he went to see the treasurer.

"Here you are, Mr. Vernon," said that official.

"All right," said Vernon. "I'll redeem it."

He had already taken out his pocket book when he glanced at the old bank note. Then he averted his face as if he had been struck in the face. That old note called for ten thousand dollars.

RAISULI A NATURAL LEADER

Born to Command, Is the Belief of a Writer in the Wide World Magazine.

A troop of soldiers came first blowing brass instruments, banging drums or striking rifles (of every make for the last century) according to which they carried. Then came the shakhs, resplendent with white burnous, yellow or scarlet slippers and silver-mounted pistols and swords. Many of these, perhaps 200, marched two by two; and at last came Raisuli—Raisuli the pretender; Raisuli the brigand; Raisuli, murderer, soldier-of-law, governor—an admixture of personalities out of all keeping with the times in which we live. And what is he like? He is medium in height, very stout, light-complexioned and heavily bearded.

Clear hazel eyes that look you fair in the face are set beneath a massive forehead; his hands, though fat, are well shaped, cared for and artistic. He has a soldierly bearing, is as quiet as a dress and can, it is said, score bull after bull with his modern rifles at 500 yards. Undoubtedly a man to command, a man of action and a terrible enemy. But he is growing stouter almost hourly. He passed us by pompously, yet with a certain fine bearing, and we, leaving Mochta to his arrangements, strolled to where our horses were being reined.—Wide World Magazine.

Antelope Increasing in Idaho.

T. J. Palmer, assistant chief of the United States biological survey, has written to State Game Warden Ben Gray, asking for estimates as to the amount of antelope and moose in this state, says the Idaho Statesman. The antelope are on the increase, according to information which has been received at the office of the game warden, particularly in the Mackay district, where they have recently been seen in large numbers.

Despite the protection on moose, they are still extremely scarce in this state and are to be found only in the few isolated valleys of Idaho which have not been taken up by ranchmen and where they are being protected by the farmers in the hills near by.

The antelope are increasing fast in the state under the protection which is afforded, and it is said they have fared extremely well for the last few years with the wolves and other beasts of prey.

Taught the Prince's Manners.

A little incident which occurred recently shows how very particular King George is with regard to the training of his sons. Two of the younger boys were riding near his majesty when the cavalcade passed men who were working on the road.

The men removed their hats and the king at once doffed his own hat. His majesty noted that the boys in the enthusiasm of their gallop had not followed his example.

He immediately called a halt, took the princes back to the workmen and ordered them to remove their hats.

Man Has Changed Lightning.

In a bulletin recently issued by the Agricultural Department at Washington, it is stated by Dr. George C. Simpson, a noted investigator, that the use of electricity is likely to lessen the number of lightning strokes, owing to the new metallic pipes offered to the destructive force in carrying it to the ground.

The lightning of the future will cause fire rather than the demolishing of buildings, as in the past.

Bear Almost Run Over by Auto.

A big black bear tried to cross the county road last night in front of the fast approaching automobile in which L. H. Brewer, president of Roguham Commercial club, and his family and friends were returning from the beach. The car was going thirty miles an hour and the bear jumped back just in time.—Rogouham Correspondence Seattle Post-Intelligence.

A New Wrinkle in Firearms.

Mr. Jack Flanagan of Mexico and Central America, is a filibustering gentleman, minger and speculator by turns and a great lover of fancy firearms at all times. He was in New York the other day and he exhibited to a group of friends in his room at the Waldorf the latest pet wrinkle for shooting irons. Just behind the tip of the front sight on a long thin .45 he had mounted a tiny diamond about the size of a pinhead.

"Great for shooting in the dark," Flanagan explained. "Picks out the sight like a searchlight."

He invited those with him to take the gun by turns, step into the closet and with door half shut aim at any object in the room. Flanagan was right; the diamond picked out the sight like a searchlight.

Fought Way to Success.

Ernest Thompson-Sexton, the famous naturalist, had a hard time to make both ends meet before fortune smiled on him. He was born in England, but went to Canada when a mere boy. After a time he sailed home to England and attended the public schools. Returning to Canada, he drifted to Manitoba, working as a day laborer. Later he went to New York, and because he could draw a little, was given a job in a lithographer's office at $15 a week. He hated the big city, went west in a year or two and wrote two volumes on the birds and mammals of Manitoba, which won him recognition and paved the way for his success.

Freezing the Hair On.

It is reported that Sir Ernest Shackleton recommends extreme cold as one of the best means of strengthening the hair. Almost all the men who worked on his Antarctic expedition found that their hair grew thicker and stronger as they approached the pole. It was also found that baldheaded men were almost never found among those who worked on the Antarctic expedition, where they then work all day in a temperature of 20 degrees of frost, and the cold seems to make the hair thicker.

Big Catch of Swordfish.

The fishing schooner Ada Bell, Capt. Harry Christopherson, came in Monday with the largest catch of swordfish reported by any of the local schooners, 24 being the number caught in a week.

The boat left here a week ago yesterday and struck the fish quite plentiful. The fish were all large and seem to be working in shore. This record catch was shipped to Boston and markets from Stoughton.—Nauk Correspondence New London Day.

Overweight.

"That lifesaver seemed to have difficulty in getting to shore." "Yes, his coat a terrible chance. He jumped overboard wearing all his hero medals."

GIVING THEM A FAIR START

Warden of Colorado Penitentiary Says Discharged Prisoners Should Have Some Funds.

Tom Tynan, warden of the Colorado penitentiary, believes the released convict should be given money upon his discharge. George Creel, in an article in Success Magazine, quotes him as follows:

"And when the prisoner has been reformed—strengthened in body and mind, taught means of livelihood and the habits of industry—what then? Must he go out with nothing in his pockets but his hands? I don't think so. No fair man can think so.

"The released convict must have some money; enough at least to tide him over the first few months—to keep him from feeling like a vagrant—to prevent his despair and relapse. I am in favor of a law that will pay the man a certain salary toward the end of the sentence—say $1 a day for the last sixty days. It is my endeavor to have every prisoner go back into the world from the ranch or road—clear eye, brown face—and heaven knows these fellows earn the money."

Malthoid
Roofing

You cannot get a good weather and waterproof roof for your building from a poor roofing. The roof of your building is the most important part of it and unless your roofing is right, there will be no peace of mind for those who live under it. A roof that leaks causes no end of trouble, beside a lot of damage. The best way to protect yourself from these unnecessary troubles, is to use Malthoid Roofing. The makers of Malthoid Roofing guarantee it to be a perfect roofing—to give satisfaction and to last as long as the building it covers, provided it is properly laid and ordinary care is taken of it. Twenty-six years of experience enables The Paraffine Paint Co., of San Francisco and Chicago to guarantee Malthoid Roofing under these conditions. To be absolutely sure that you have no roofing troubles, buy Malthoid and lay it properly
