OFFERS AN AUTO FOR A NAME

In Detroit they are looking for a name for their annual Water Carnival. A handsome new Plauders automobile is to be awarded to the person suggesting the best name. There are no strings tied to this offer—a few minutes of thought and a little originality and the auto may be yours. The contest is open to people everywhere.

The City of the Straits is ideally situated for a gigantic water fete such as is proposed. The beautiful Detroit river with its crystal-clear water flows by on its way to Lake Erie only sixteen miles away. Lying right opposite Detroit is her renowned fairy-land, Belle Isle, a great island park which is generally conceded to be the most beautiful in the world. Up stream just ten miles is Lake St. Clair, and farther on the Venice of America, Detroit's unique summer resort.

Detroit's water-front is 24 miles in length, and across the river, Canada affords a similar stretch of river-front. So, from the many vantage points, hundreds of thousands can see the magnificent river spectacle by day and by night. The carnival of 1912 will be held during the week of July 24th. The Detroit Board of Commerce appreciates the magnitude of this event and so has offered the Plauders car as a prize. The name must be "catchy" and in some way characteristic of Detroit. The contest closes October 16 and all names must be sent to the Contest Committee of the Detroit Board of Commerce, Detroit, Mich.

Cold Comfort From Mortar.
The coldest place on a hot summer day is not on a rock garden, or in a subcellar or on the deck of a steamer, or upon some beach "resort" by ocean. It is at the entrance of an uncompleted building where the mortar has been laid but has not yet set. The air which comes out of this building is cold, damp and pleasantly suggestive of a stone quarry or a cavern grotto. Evaporation is perhaps the secret of it all, but why is it that other evaporation is not so efficacious, so pleasant?

PROTECT The Health of Yourselves and Family.

Pope's Herbs is prepared to provide a dependable household remedy, based upon the principle of purity of blood, insuring freedom from disease. It is a medicine for maladies such as Rheumatism, Liver Complaints, Constipation, Fever and Ague, Female Disorders, Indigestion, Lumbago, Kidney Derangements, Catarrh, Sick and Nervous Headaches, Loss of Appetite and all ailments arising from inactivity of the Liver and Kidneys.

It is a purely Herbs, Barks and Roots Compound. It is put up in Chocolate coated Tablets pleasing and easy to take; (not to be dissolved in water.)

Mrs. J. C. Meade, of Hyattsville, Md., says:
"For years I have suffered with Backache, Headaches, Neuralgia, and Nervousness and Extreme Fatigue. I tried many remedies without relief. Four months ago a grateful friend induced me to write to Pope Medicine Co., Washington, D. C., for a box of Pope's Herb Compound Tablets; the very first dose of two tablets gave me relief. I used not quite a $1.00 box and I am entirely cured of the pain in my back and have no more headache."

Dr. J. V. Hennessy, a prominent physician and surgeon of Albany, N. Y., in part says:
"As a Blood Purifier, Liver, Kidney and System regulator, I prescribe Pope Medicine Co.'s of Washington, D. C., Herb Compound, as I have done for the past 20 years, and I have found it to be a great remedy, which seldom if ever fails. There are thousands of letters from users of Pope's Herbs, that have been benefited and cured by its proper use. Pope's Herb Compound Tablets are put up 200 in a box, "six months' treatment," and will be sent post-paid on receipt of $1.00. Each box contains a printed guarantee binding us to refund the money if it does not remedy ailments, also full directions."

Guaranteed by the Pope Medicine Co., under the Pure Food and Drug Act, June 30, 1906, No. 34956.

NEW KIND OF INFANT SCHOOL

"Three Rs" Are Out and Children Are Taught to Be Happy Instead.

The man in the club had been talking politics with a school inspector, until the gentleman declined to discuss the subject any more.

"We'll talk about the youngsters themselves for a change," he said. "Do you know that both in France and Belgium reading, writing and arithmetic are being omitted from the subjects taught in infant schools? The children are simply taught to be happy instead. And when they bring their dinners to school, the food has, under the official regulations, to be put into a basket, which must be labeled at the school, and put in a special shelf in a clean, airy place. Fancy such regulations here! Any old newspaper and any cupboard is good enough for our children."

"In Germany, toys are provided for play time, and all little children are compelled to bring a clean pocket handkerchief to school, and they must have a bath once a week."

"In Finland, the Finlet children are taught to wash their dust, sweep, look after flowers, and so on; and in some Japanese schools a resting room with a bed is provided, so that over tired children may have a nap!"—Answers, London.

DAINTIES: FOR THE BABY

Number of Safe Foods to Serve the Sick Little One While Traveling.

Sometimes in traveling, or when living in hotels for any length of time, it is well to know of a few dainties which one can make oneself and give to an ill child, or to a baby whose stomach is a trifle upset. For instance, albumin water is often ordered for infants with acute stomach trouble. A mother can give it with perfect safety to nourish an ill baby until the doctor is reached. Albumin water is nothing more than the white of an egg dissolved in a pint of cold water, that has been previously boiled. Sometimes a baby can keep nothing else on his stomach for days but this light yet apparently sustaining drink. Barley jelly is also excellent. To a tablespoonful of barley flour, which has been dissolved in cold water, add a pint of boiling water. Boil this with a pinch of salt for 20 minutes in a double boiler, strain, flavor and serve very cold.

Dead Mouse Ruins Women.

Six women with chills, and camp stool, yesterday kept a gang of telephone men from planting poles in Etna street, between Richmond street and Euclid avenue, in the East New York district of Brooklyn.

When the gang first appeared Mrs. Joseph Roser went out to her home at No. 191 Etna street and blamed her chair squarely over the hole that had been dug for a pole. They then marched Mrs. John Schuler, Mrs. William Parker, Mrs. H. A. Miller, Mrs. Ida Benson and Mrs. Catherine V. Riker, all of Etna street, and guarded the other excavations.

"They were deaf to persuasion, but at last one of the men got a dead mouse, tied it to a string and climbed a tree. Then he let down the mouse on a woman's neck. She shrieked and all the women fled."

After which the gang planted a pole—but only one, for in a few minutes the matrons got back their nerve and returned.—New York World.

Dark Smoke No Fun.

Funny thing about smoking! If a man were compelled to puff a good cigar with his eyes shut the operation would lose its zest. A man who had undergone a slight operation upon one of his eyes had to stay in a darkened room for a week with his optics bandaged. After a while says his doctor told him he could take a gentle smoke if he liked. He jumped at the chance and to his amazement found it afforded him not the slightest pleasure. To be sure, men often smoke in the dark, but they are always in the glare of the lighted end of the cloud of smoke in the air. There's no more fun in a sightless smoke than a smokes egg or a kiss upon your own hand. What's the psychology of it?

Ancient Rain Gauge.

The credit of inventing the rain gauge has always been given to Castelli, a contemporary of Galileo, who made one in 1639, but the director of the German meteorological observations, Dr. V. Wede, has shown that it is due to a Korean King. The latter, King Sejo, in the year 1442 caused an instrument of bronze to be constructed to measure the rain, and it is set out in the historical records of Corea that this was a vase fifteen inches deep and seven inches in diameter, placed upon a pillar. An example of this was placed in the observatory, and each time the rain fell the officials were instructed to measure the height and to make it known to the King. Other instruments were distributed to the provinces and the observations made were sent to court.

Smart Yoking.

"Tommy, what did you do with that penny I gave you for taking my medicine?"
"I bought a bun with one halfpenny, and I gave Jimmy the other half to drink the medicine for me."

Summer Calls

"To me it is the greatest of mysteries," said the girl who likes to talk, "why one has to make calls at a summer resort, 150 miles away, nobody in any possible situation in any civilized spot on earth likes to make calls. They are one of the white man's burdens and women endure them just as cheerfully as the early Christian martyrs took to the stake and the lions—because they have to."

"Every woman when she gets ready to go away for the summer heaves a sigh and says: 'Thank goodness! Now I can lead a simple, care-free life and not have to think of social affairs again until winter! Such a relief!'"

"This is all right and alluring in theory, but somehow it never works out. Never! Every day after I arrive I get news of other arrivals. 'The Simpsons,' says the milkman as he measures out a quart, 'came yesterday.' The Simpsons are the paragon people from Indiana. 'Dear me!' I say, 'I must go down and see the Simpsons soon!'"

"Larchmere is open," announces the telegram. 'The Larches got here today and Mrs. Larch's sisters come with her.'"

"Really!" I comment. 'I always liked Mrs. Larch. I must go an see her.'"

Presently I find that the Deslers, the Moses, the Ryans and the Plunketts have all come. That means a whole row of cottages scattered over a mile of shore that must be visited.

"Luckily, I am too busy cleaning house to go for a few days, but presently there isn't any excuse. The day of making summer calls is always coming hot, and the perspiration trickles down my face as I attire myself in a 'dressing' dress with one long eye on the hammock and a pile of new magazines. 'I just hate this!' I groan from time to time.

"Then I start out holding my skirts away from the brambles and grasses and wish I owned a launch, so that I might arrive properly instead of appearing red faced and straggling of poverty who have to walk along a 'country road.' I negotiated the entire mile, taking the Larches first, because they are the farthest away. Then I snag the lace on my best petticoat and catch my hair on the thorns of the roses over it!"

"This puts me in an amiable frame of mind as I seek the front entrance. There is nobody in sight when I knock. I knock again and step inside the porch screen and there is a smothered shriek from the farther room, and a straggling figure springs into light. It turns out to be Mrs. Larch in a kimono with her hair in curls around her face and blinking eyes.

"Oh! she gets out with a hand on her heart. 'How you frightened me! I washed my hair and was taking a nap—I didn't expect any one—that is, I'm glad to see you! Do sit down!'"

"I sit down and try to converse in a sprightly manner while Mrs. Larch looks me violently for catching her looking so disreputable. She even hasn't her eyebrows on, and it does make a difference. I escape breathing hard and exclamations of 'Do come again! So good of you to drop in!'"

"The Deslers have gone to town, and no one is at home but a maiden aunt, who insists on telling me about the case of measles she had 30 years ago.

"I find Mrs. Plunkett and her mother putting up strawberries, very hot and stained and plainly afraid that something in the kitchen will go to boil over. 'I haven't had time to dress or anything like I came,' says Mrs. Plunkett aggressively eyeing my fresh frock. 'We've been so dreadfully busy! I didn't realize the people had begun to call! Oh! the jam's burning!'"

"Mrs. Ryan came down after a 20 minute wait and insisted stoutly that I didn't realize her—she was just thinking of getting up. She smothered six yawns before she finally gets her eyes open.

"At the Plunketts Mr. Plunkett, in a muddy pair of overalls is digging in the back yard. 'Elsie, Plunkett is washing her hair and Mrs. Plunkett in a faded year-before-last work dress is weeding her nasturtium bed very frantically and very loudly."

"My goodness! she cries at last on me. 'If I'd expected callers—I look terrible.'"

"When I get back home, a wreck from the long, hot walk and the crushing sense of having bargained upon a half-finished families who didn't want company in the least, I say: 'Thank goodness, that's done!' and hastily get into a kimono and the hammock."

"What for? Oh, next month I have Mrs. Plunkett, Mrs. Desler, Mrs. Larch and all the others dropping in on me in their flimsiest gowns and they always come when I am asleep, washing my hair or fixing in something that is a sight. I smile, and tell them how glad I am to see them and how perfectly lovely I was of them to come, and after they are gone I say: 'Did you ever? Why on earth did she come today of all days!'"

"But we should all be mad as hatters if the rest didn't call on us! It's a quaint game!"
