

Summertime

Community band brings spectrum of music to Heritage Park

The hills: Music lovers enjoyed a Thursday evening concert in the style of John Phillip Sousa.

Saxy sounds: The saxophone section provides a great melody for concert-goers Thursday night in Heritage Park. Music ranged from pop to classical, to patriotic brass.

There could be nothing better than spending a summer evening kicking back on a blanket or sitting in a lawn chair to listen to your favorite composers. The Farmington Community Band treated guests in Heritage Park Thursday evening to a wide range of composers offering renditions of some pop and classical favorites. Pieces by favorite composers were punctuated with an encore of John Phillip Sousa's patriotic sounds. And of course, the evening wasn't complete without a medley of music from the incredibly popular film, "Titanic." Not a bad way to fill a warm and humid evening. The Farmington Community Band performs a number of concerts at Heritage Park in Farmington Hills throughout the summer months.

Marches: Flapper Rhonda Furman spiced up the evening with boards that announced the title of each Sousa march the community band played.

Enjoy: John Schenk and his daughter, Allison, take in the music in Heritage Park. The music just made a warm, humid evening all the better for families visiting the park.

Fans: Concert-goers set up their chairs on the crest of the hill for a good view and nice sounds.

Sidewalk Sales

Thursday, July 23
9am-9pm

Friday, July 24
9am-9pm
Free Horse Drawn
Carriage Rides - 7-9pm

Saturday, July 25
9am-6pm

July
23 - 25

For More Information, call
(248) 656-0060

Sponsored by:
Clarion-Eccentric

