week. "There were only four or five (competitors) in my division," she noted. "But I was happy with how high I scored. I just wanted to see how I was doing." If O'Donnell has learned anything in the last few years, it's to be patient with herself—and her performance. "I'm at the point now where I don't get upset with myself if I don't shoot well," she said.

Her goals for the National Target Championships are modest, at least for her: "I'd like to finish in the top 12 in the prelims and in the top 16 in (Friday's) shoot-down." Even though she's not in peak form, O'Donnell's future plans for archery made her decision to compete here a no-brainer. "It's so close by and it's fun," she said. "Really, it'd be silly not to. I just want to have a good time. And I'd like to shoot in the 1250a." Her future plans include taking shots at the Olympic teams in 2000 and 2004. "After I graduate and get a job, and work a while, hopefully I'll be in con-attention at that time," she said. "But there will be a lot of people who will have come up (since 1996), so it will be a matter of wanting to see how good they are."

Stopen takes 6th at Road Runner

It was a night for Star Trek at the 15th annual Roadrunner Classic, an 8-kilometer race which attracted over 700 runners on the streets of Northville.

Brad Kirk of Portage was the captain of it all, winning in 24 minutes, 10 seconds.

All things added up, the 30-year-old certified public accountant ran an impressive 4:52 per mile to unseat defending champion Paul Aufdemberge of Redford, who clocked a respectable 24:25.

the first two miles of the course. It was fascinating, to say the least. But once I got over the terror, I said to myself, 'I might as well keep going.' The course marshals and volunteers did a good job."

With the four-minute jump, Park led most of the male finishers, but her husband Rich, the third-place finisher overall in 25:10, eventually caught up and passed his wife.

"He kind of gave me an evil smile and out-kicked me," she said.

Park, who has been battling a back injury, plans to run the prestigious Bobby Crim race next month in Flint.

"I haven't been pounding as hard," she said. "I'm almost back. I'm almost there. I felt good tonight. I'm pleased for this particular race."

The women's champion, 35-year-old Laurel Park of Ann Arbor, five-panted, winning comfortably in 28:44, a 6:47 per mile pace. Toledo's Cheri McLean was a distant second in 30:33.

It was Kirk's first Roadrunner Classic as a participant. Last year he was injured and watched the race.

"It was a good course, challenging for three to four miles," said Kirk of the 4.91-mile event. "It's a course that keeps you honest."

"I felt pretty good coming in. I had some good workouts leading up to this."

Just prior to the race, Kirk was surprised to hear from his chief challenger Aufdemberge, who had won the race three of the past four years, that the prize money totalling nearly $5,000 had been dropped after the chief sponsor, First Finance, pulled out.

me at the starting line," Kirk said. "But regardless, I came because it was a competitive race. It's unfortunate, but I'm happy with the results."

"I came here because I knew it attracted the best runners in the state. Even without it (the money), I would have shown up."

Kirk, a native of Otago, ran competitive track at Western Michigan University specializing in the 1,600- and 5,000-meter races.

"I'm more of a 10K, 6K kind of guy, but I think I'll move up and try a marathon pretty soon," he said. "I'd like to make the 2000 Olympic Trials."

Kirk's best highlight as a runner came in 1996 when he was chosen to represent the U.S. in the World Cross Country Championships in Capetown, South Africa where he finished as the fifth American.

Meanwhile, for Park, she experienced a slightly different ride than Kirk.

With the men's and women's starts on separate streets, the women's race started four minutes prematurely following Karen Newman's Red Wing rendition of the National Anthem.

"I heard the gun and everybody just took off," said Park, who was afraid she was going to get lost. "I was running toward Seven Mile and then I see the lead vehicle and lead biker peel off."

"I was by myself for four miles. I had run
