

When the curtain rises on Act Two in the Gem Theatre's housewarming production of "I Love You, You're Perfect, Now Go Away," the first to appear on stage in a comical Kolly green satin bridesmaid's ensemble complete with giant bows and dyed-to-match shoes. Fortunately, though good for laughs, the character of the comedy, the garish gown and its like was not visible at the theater's Wednesday night celebration of Chuck Forbes and his relocated cabaret showplace.

Instead, Forbes' friends and family, neighbors, arts patrons and downtown movers-and-shakers gathered in the Gem's garden-gated courtyard wearing tasteful, understated summer-infall fashions. Of the 150 guests cozier up to the ever-gracious Forbes and admired the polished-to-perfection "gem" of a theater. "What a welcome addition to the neighborhood," said communications guru Leland K. Bassett of Farmington Hills, whose office is just across the street from the Gem. "It's mingling in an elegant tux with casual-chic black sneakers."

The first cultural event of the season found women searching their closets for appropriate attire. "It's hard to know what to wear," said Susan H. Brown, Susie Hunt of West Bloomfield. "I spent a long time deciding." She made her entrance in a black satin gown with a tiger-stripped bodice. And when the first of the evening's guest-dust, she and other stylish theatergoers donned lightweight jackets, shawls and sweaters.

A sea of black dresses and suits circulated among the chrysanthemums on the gray lawn. But a few bright colors—royal blue or fuchsia gown punctuated the landscape, and a

Michigan-based Bavarian Village Ski & Golf and New York-based American Express Travel have teamed up to add another dimension to "full service" for skiers and golfers. American Express Travel has opened desks at Bavarian Village located in the Catskill Mountains. New patrons can book trips to their favorite ski and golf destinations by stocking up on the newest equipment and apparel. "Our customers will be able to use American Express Travel services not only for ski or golf getaways, but also for travel to any location, business trips, cruises or even to visit family," says Richard Held, president of Bavarian Village.

American Express Travel will offer promotions and incentives such as packages for "Shell's Wonderful World of Golf" in Bay Harbor and a "Discover Western Skiing Program" for which ski equipment will be shipped in advance to provide ease to the travelers.

"Bavarian Village has a very unique and specialized customer base of dedicated golfers and skiers. Their destination knowledge of golf and ski resorts combined with our knowledge of travel and travel arrangements will give customers the complete service for all their traveling needs," says Jeannette Colombo, senior manager of specialty travel at American Express.
