

Fantasia wins synchronized skating title

Fantasia team wins precision title

Farmington Hills Fantasia, a youth introductory United States Figure Skating Association precision team, won the Mid-American Championships in synchronized skating, finishing ahead of 16 other Midwest teams.

Fantasia is coached by Tammie Boucher and Dawn Swofford and consists of 12 skaters, all of whom skate at the Farmington Hills Ice Arena and are members of the Farmington Hills Skating Club.

In addition to their once-a-week, on-ice precision practices and occasional off-ice practices, the girls also compete individually at levels ranging from USFSA Pre-Preliminary to Juvenile and ISI Freestyle 4 to Freestyle 6.

Precision team skating teams consists of 12 to 24 skaters, performing maneuvers such as wheels, lines, blocks and circles. They must display unity, accuracy and speed as they combine intricate skating steps, arm positions and facial expressions, flowing from one formation to the next.

Each team also has a theme. The music, choreography and costume design should match the theme. Fantasia's theme is "The X-Files."

The first World Championships of Synchronized Skating will debut in the year 2000 and will become an Olympic event in 2002. Synchronized skating will be added to the men's and women's singles, pairs and ice dancing events.

Farmington Hills Ice Arena also is home to three other Fantasia precision teams — USFSA Junior Classic, ISI Youth Precision and ISI Youth Junior Youth Formation.

The teams are directed and coached by Tracie Nussbaum and Boacher. Swofford and Amanda McGill also help coach the teams.

If interested in joining one of the teams for the 1999-2000 skating season, contact the ice arena at (248) 478-8800. Try-outs will take place in July.
