January and that's exactly what happened.

"U-My came out and looked at me during the regular season. They taked to coach Herrington, and he mentioned me to them. "They looked through film of 65 different punters and said trans) coach (Billy) Morrison called (Monday) and said they're not bringing in any other freshmen. They think I can handle it. He said, if I do well in the sumer, they'll either start me with a scholarship or give me one mext year.

a scholarship or give me ene next year."
Ghannam, who only punted 23 times last season due to the proficiency of the Harrison offense but still averaged 42.3 yards, plans to challenge for the U-M starting job next season.
Sargent will be a junior but missed the 1997 season with a back injury. Fifth-year sonior Jason Vinson, a former walkon from Troy, punted the last two years; however, freshman kicker Hayden Epstein took over when Vinson had a bad game against

Ohio State.

"It will be tough to beat (Sargent) out, but I'm ready to try," Ghannam said. "(U-M) told me they're looking for a true punter, because they want placokickers to work on kicking.

"I'm definitely going in there to start. As long as they're giving me the opportunity, I'm going to keep taking advantage of it. If it doesn't pan out, it doesn't pan out, it doesn't pan out, it doesn't pan out. I still have the next three years to improve and work on my weaknesses.

"I'm just waiting to see what happens in the summer, show them what I've got.
Ghannam said Morrison asked him if he could punt in front of 110,000 people.
"Maybe the first week I'll be a little intimidated," Ghannam said, 'but you have to step above it, get used to the surroundings. Once I do, I think I can do the job.

"I think coach Gordon is a really respected man, like coach Horrington," Ghannam said. "I think his word gave the coaches a little more incontive, like maybe I'm not a joke. Hearing it from him, I think helped me out a little bit. I think my leg will do the rest.

"Coach Herrington gave me the opportunity by letting thom know about me, and (Harrison) coach (John) Witkowski, as special teams coach, taught me everything.

"I just came in off the street to kick for him. I punted in the street but never on a team; I wasn't going to play football. Coach Wit worked with me for three years and just pounded it into my head every day. It comes easy now."
