events with a victory in the distance medley relay.

"They worked hard to get there, and they know what it takes to win," said Salem coach Geoff Baker of his distance crew, adding there was much more to the Salem victory. "I thought we had a good, solid, team performance today."

The Rocks, led by Gabe Coble's meet-best jump of 20-5, won the long jump with help from Pat Johnson and Ryan Silva and scored in every field event but the pole vault.

"We had to doctor our sprints, because our best sprinter (Mike Shull) was out (with a strained hamstring)," Baker said.

Salem accomplished that "by putting other people in certain spots," he added. "It shows we do have a little depth in the sprints; wo're not just a distance team."

Gabriel, Mark Sheehan, Chris Mason, who was sixth in the 100 dash, and Coble won the sprint medloy. The Rocks also were third in the 400 relay and second in the 1,600.

"The sprint medley (win) was kinda unexpected," Baker said.
"We put good guys in there, and we thought wed place. That was a good win."

The coup de grace was Salem's victory in the abuttle hurdle relay. With points from that event, the high jump and pole vault outstanding, the Rocks had an insurmountable, 79-58 lead over Churchill.

But the Rocks won that event, toe, with the team of Dave Clemons, Rob Showalter, Silva and Ryan Thomas by less than half a second over the Chargers.

"I was a little nervous," Baker said when he heard the met officials call for a re-run in the shuttle hurdles, "but it wasn't our heat; so we kinda lucked out."

Clemons competed but also was bothered by a pulled hamstring muscle, according to Baker.

"We didn't want to have to count on beating Ryan Kearney and Churchill again," he said. "I know, with his speed and hurdling ability, he was coming after us."

Despite the final result, it wasn't clear sailing for the Rocks all through the meet, however.

"We had a good seare going," Baker said, adding Salem was disqualified in the 800 relay and

As Ryan goes so does our team.
"I'm very proud of all our kids, because they believed they could come here and score a lot of points and make it an interesting meet.
"I'd like to congratulate Geoff Baker and the Salem team for demonstrating once again, with their super performances in just about every event, why they should be Observerland champions."

people and started making us nervous."

There was only a one-point difference between the Rocks and Chargers at that point.

"We knew we still had some good events to come," Baker said, "but anything can happen — a dropped baton or an injury." In the shuttle hurdles, our leadoff guy (Clemons) had a strained hamstring, and we weren't sure he was going to be able to go. If he goes down, there's no points for us there. That's 10 for (Churchill) and a 20-point swing."

Churchill was led by Kearney, who won the individual high hurdles, anchored the winning 800 relay team, led the Chargers to a second-place finish in the shuttle hurdles and helped Churchill get third in the 1,600 relay. "I'd like to congratulate my should be Observerland champions.*
Redford Catholic Central was the only multiple team-event winner other than Salem with firste in the shot put and discus. CC senior Nick Brzezinski set an individual record in the discus with a toss of 177-11, shattering former Salem athlete Bob Pittaway's record of 160-9.

THE LAST WORD: "I appreciate the fact the Observer Newspaper sponsors this event," Austin said. "I think the ObserverInder Releys is one of the most prestigious events in the state. Year effer year we have qualify performances this meet and, if not for the Observer sponsoring this event, I think the sport of track and field would die." Churchill get third in the 1,600 relay.

"I'd like to congratulate my team; they're having a very good year," Austin said. "Jason Richmond was coming off an injury and turned in a PR in the 1,600.
