

THE GREAT KIDNEY REMEDY
CONVINCES THE MOST SKEPTICAL

I want to tell you what Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root did for me. I was completely broken down. My kidneys hurt me so that when I was down, I could not get up unless I took hold of something to put myself with.

I tried different kinds of kidney pills, but they did me no good. Some one told me to try Swamp-Root. I had no faith in it but to please my wife, I purchased one bottle and took it. I saw it was beginning to help me and kept on taking it until I had taken six bottles and it straightened me out all right.

Swamp-Root is the only medicine that did me any good. I thought I would write this letter and tell everyone that as afflicted as I was, to take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. It cost me a dollar, but it cost me five dollars, and it did me five hundred dollars worth of good.

Yours very truly,
GEORGE H. HUBER,
Atlanta, Ill.

State of Illinois, ss,
Loan County, ss,
I, M. M. Hoese, a Notary Public in and for the said county of Loan, in the State of Illinois, do hereby certify that George H. Huber, known to me to be the same person whose name is subscribed to the foregoing instrument, appeared before me this day in person and acknowledged that he signed and delivered the said instrument as his free and voluntary act. Given under my hand and Notarial Seal this 12th day of July, A. D. 1929.

Notary Public.

BOY CARRIED OFF HONORS
Inquisitive Person Probably Still Looking for Information That He Didn't Get.

Every one who has lived in a small town knows the type of person generally detected there by his inquisitive habits. That even children delight in thwarting the purposes of such a person is shown by an incident related by a New Englander.

A woman in a New England town wanted a friend to share her duties and sent her nine-year-old son to deliver it. He returned quickly, his face wearing a satisfied smile.

"Mrs. Brown was much obliged, ma'am," said Mr. Parker just after he had there. "He said, 'Hello, sonny! I wonder if you've got molasses in that jug?' and I said, 'No, sir.' He said, 'Got vinegar?' and I told him 'No, sir.' He said, 'At last he said, 'Well, that's a jug in your hand, all right?' and I put my jug on the ground and said, 'No, sir.'"

Wanted—A Handful.
Henderson, Mike, heaved such a deep sigh that his companion was moved to ask him what the matter was.

"I was just thinking about bad roads and the wonders of science," was the answer. "This earth is spinning round faster than a railway train behind time."

"No, but ain't it off yet?"

"It would be if we could have some place to grab on to while the territory slid under our feet until the place we wanted to go came along."

THE LITTLE WIDOW
A Mighty Good Sort of Neighbor to Have.

"A little widow, a neighbor of mine, persuaded me to try Grape-Nuts when my stomach was so weak that it would not retain food of any other kind," writes a grateful woman, from San Bernardino Co., Cal.

"I had been ill and confined to my bed with fever and nervous prostration for three long months after the death of my second boy. We were in despair until the little widow's advice brought relief."

"I liked Grape-Nuts food from the beginning, and in an incredibly short time it gave me such strength that I was able to leave my bed and enjoy my three good meals a day. In 2 months my weight increased from 95 to 115 pounds, my nerves had steadied down, I felt ready for anything. My neighbors were amazed to see me gain so rapidly, and still more so when they heard that Grape-Nuts alone had brought the change."

"My four-year-old boy had eaten very little last spring and lost his appetite entirely, which made him cross and peevish. I put him on a diet of Grape-Nuts, which he 'loved' at once. He improved from the beginning, the colic disappeared and now he is fat and rosy, with a delightful soft, clear skin. The Grape-Nuts diet did it. I will willingly answer all inquiries. ECONOMICAL WINTERING OF CATTLE
By R. S. SHAW, Dean of Agriculture, Michigan Agricultural College

A Good Bunch of Feeder Steers.

The Michigan farmer is confronted by a serious situation as regards the wintering of his cattle. Under the term farmer in this connection we include more particularly those engaged in general farming rather than the dairy or beef producing specialist. The general farmer is not so apt to prepare for emergencies as the specialist. Following the severe drought of the past season there is a marked shortage of farm feeds accompanied by unusually high prices for the same. Under these conditions it is a common practice for the farmer to dispose of most of his cattle at the sacrifice rather than purchase the necessary high-priced commercial feeds. Where this is done a long period usually elapses before the farm is restocked.

A great deal can be accomplished in the economical wintering of dry cows, stockers, and even young growing animals if the farmer, less valuable farm crops are properly prepared and utilized. There is much feed value in the straw of such crops as oats, wheat, headlands and bullwheat, cornstalks, corn fodder, etc., if properly utilized.

Very undesirable results have occurred in cases where some of the two of these feeds alone have been used throughout the entire season without special preparation or combination with other feeds as in the case of dry cows and cow calves. A woody, difficultly digestible combination such as these two feeds contains too great an excess of dry woody fiber which after long continued use is apt to lead to indigestion and other troubles.

On the other hand, however, if these feeds are made more palatable and supplemented by small quantities of other feeds good results may be secured. The English and Scotch farmers use straw with roots and some meal for dairy cows and beef cattle. Much can be done to make coarse feeds more palatable, but the American farmer is not in the habit of putting hay, straw, corn stalks, etc., through the cutting box, moistening the same and mixing a little meal with it. On the other hand, the farmers' time is not generally fully occupied in giving her much practice in the affairs which relate to the life of a woman in the home. One of the great elements of sterling character of the homemaker, is that of being able to manage economically the home affairs. This is not necessarily a conservative and disburser, and not a producer of the family income. But since she has no instinctive knowledge of how this important work is best done, she is necessarily dependent to her only as the result of specific discipline. Once guarantee to all growing girls the proper amount and kind of training in the management of all the details in the business side of the household and you have laid one of the foundation stones for a substantial moral character and for thrift and happiness and contentment in one of the homes of the future.

BUSINESS TRAINING FOR COUNTRY BOYS AND GIRLS

By PROF. W. A. McKEEVER,
From Lecture Given at Kalamazoo College, Mich.

In the rush of carrying on the work of the farm and farm home, the country boy and girl are very likely to suffer in respect to their business training. Each may be given a small amount of property or a small interest in the business of the farm or home, or a suitable wage for the work performed. Thus some specific lessons in economic thrift may be inculcated. There is here again great need that the authorities look out on a plan of procedure. But while we are waiting for them to do so, we may resort to a few methods that have proved very helpful in imparting the instruction here considered essential. First of all, it is desirable that the boy and girl be made familiar with the details of the farm business. The father should take his son into his confidence and familiarize him with practically every business deal, the price paid and the price received, the methods of buying at an advantage and of selling at a profit; the methods of keeping the farm accounts and of relieving the money returned; all these and many other details should be made familiar to the understanding of the growing boy. Moreover, his business training will be greatly aided if he be directed to conducting on a small scale actual business transactions. In addition he may be given repeated by the task of taking charge of the minor affairs of shopping, marketing, and the like. Country youths are proverbially crude in their business habits, and that chiefly for want of practice.

A similar sort of business transaction may and should be given the girl growing up in the farm home. Let it be seen to that she have some small property, or money, or at least a reasonable income of her own, and that she be taught by slow degrees how to make a responsible use of this income in the management of her personal affairs. Above all things else, be certain that she be given as much for what work she performs as would have to be paid for such performance by an ordinary employee. Then, add to this a small amount for the sake of the good will and affectionate regard that naturally exists between parents and daughter. Every step in the business training of the young woman will

MAINE WAS BLOWN

FORMAL REPORT SHEDS NO
LIGHT ON WHO CAUSED DIS-ASTER; FACTS WITHHELD.

SHIP'S FORWARD TURRET CAN NOT BE FOUND

Low Form of Explosive Used, Where in Report Differs From Findings of the Samsen Board.

The United States battleship Maine, which sank beneath the waters of Havana harbor in February, 1898, as the result of an explosion, was blown up from the outside. This was announced yesterday by the naval board which has been examining the wreck. The finding confirms the report of the original investigators, who made a careful examination of the wreck shortly after the disaster.

The statement given out by the navy department is brief. Secretary of the board, Admiral Sigsbee, says that the contents of the ship's reserve magazine, A-14-M, said contents including a large quantity of black powder. The more the board members investigated the contents of the magazine, the more they were convinced that the explosion was caused by the contents of the magazine, when, on the morning of Feb. 15, 1898, the news was flashed that the battleship Maine had been blown up and sunk in the harbor of Havana. Other great tragedies have stirred the country, but none possessed so many dramatic elements and produced so many of tremendous consequences as did this.

The first sensation of the nation felt even before the horror of the loss of the brave seamen who had been killed in their hammocks, was a belief that the explosion was the result of treachery on the part of Spain.

This feeling was so acute that it was with the greatest difficulty that President McKinley and his high officers of the government, prevented the date demonstration which would have inevitably led to war.

U. S. Tells Russia to Stand Ground.
With 2,000 Russian Cossacks advancing to occupy Tiberias, proclaiming the Russian flag, the Russian government, in answer to the point of the bayonet, W. Morgan Shuster, financial agent of the Persian government, is advising the American state department to stand on his constitutional rights and defy the czar.

Charles W. Russell, United States minister at Tiberias, today was instructed to advise Shuster to stand his ground.

So bitterly does Persia resent the belligerent attitude of Russia in sending her famed though hated Cossacks that fear is expressed that they will pour on the Russian flag a war. Nothing would delight Russia more than such an attack, as it would give her the excuse so long and so vigorously sought for to occupy Persia formally and to have the half of Persia.

Taft Wins Victory.
The Republican national committee, in session in Washington, today adopted a program which had been arranged in advance for its deliberations, giving President Taft a clean victory in the contest for the nomination.

The national convention to nominate candidates for president and vice-president will be held in Chicago, beginning Tuesday, June 18. The vote in favor of Chicago was overwhelming, the ballot showing: Chicago 42, Denver 1, St. Louis 1, Albany 1.

St. Louis formally withdrew from the contest before the voting began, but Col. Cecil Lusk of Texas insisted on casting his ballot for the city.

Richeson Trial Is Delayed.
An effort was made by the attorneys for Rev. Clarence V. F. Richeson, charged in Boston with the murder of Miss Lillian, to have the trial postponed from January 1st until after the winter. Judge Barnders will hear arguments on the question, but they had not had time to prepare a defense.

China's Recent Abdications.
Prince Chun, the regent and father of the child emperor, has abdicated. His place as guardian of the throne is taken today by Shi Fan, a Manchurian prince and former president of the national assembly, and Hsu Shi Chang, vice-president of the privy council.

Memorandum council has voted to continue in its municipal league link this winter.

Taking advantage of an act passed by the last legislature, Louisiana's (Maine) city government will this year be established as a municipal league plant.

The greatest religious demonstration that Saginaw has ever known was held in the National cathedral here yesterday, when an estimated 10,000 people, which started the four days Men and Religion Forward Movement. These men were gathered from all of the churches of the city.

It Means Health
For the Child

The careful mother, who watches closely the physical peculiarities of her children, will soon discover that the most important thing in connection with a child's constant good health is to keep his bowels "regularly" open; if neglected, bowels will be followed by loss of appetite, restlessness during sleep, irritability and a dozen and one similar evidences of physical disorder.

At the first sign of such disorder give the child a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night on retiring and repeat the dose the following night if necessary—more than that will scarcely be needed. You will find that the child will become a contented, happy, healthy at once and will eat and sleep normally. This remedy is a vast improvement over all cathartics, laxative waters and similar things, which are altogether too powerful for a child. The home of Mrs. L. Grunwald, 35 Perkins St., Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. J. P. McMillan, Fountain, Mich., were always supplied with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and with them, as with thousands of others, there is no substitute for this grand laxative. It is really more than a laxative, for it contains surplus tonic properties which help to tone and strengthen the stomach, liver and bowels so that after a brief use of it all laxatives can be dispensed with and nature will do its own work.

Anyone wishing to make a trial of this remedy before buying it in the regular way of a druggist at fifty cents or one dollar a bottle, may write to the publisher a sample bottle sent to the home free of charge by simply addressing Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, 100 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. Your name and address on a postal card will do.

Husband Was Willing.
The Scot has no monopoly of domestic felicity, as many a piquant paragraph bears witness. The other day an old farmer and his wife were in "la" the sights of a provincial town, and among other places they visited a panorama of South Africa.

The views were extremely interesting, and the couple were enjoying themselves to the full. As scene after scene passed, the woman's enthusiasm increased, and at length, turning to her husband, she exclaimed: "Oh, Sandy, this is really interesting. I could just sit here all my days."

"Ah, weel, Jennie, woman," replied Sandy, to the mirth of those sitting near, "just sit you still there; I'll not grudge the snapance."

The Human Heart

The heart is a wonderful double pump, through the action of which the blood stream is kept sweeping round and round through the body at the rate of several miles an hour. Remember this, that our bodies will not stand the strain of over-work without good pure blood any more than the engine can run smoothly without oil. After many years of study in the active practice of medicine, Dr. R. V. Pierce found that when the stomach was out of order, the blood impure and there were symptoms of general breakdown, a tonic made of the glyceric extract of certain roots was the best corrective. This he called

"What are you going to give at the preacher's donation party, Maundy?"

"Lands sake! Nuthin'. Why, I give the preacher a real store needle that cost 10 cents at his donation party only three years ago!"

The Difference.
"John M. Hackett," said a Chicago lawyer, in a eulogy of the late Supreme court justice, "had a way of pointing an observation with a story. Once he wanted to rebuke a man for exaggeration, so he said he was a Pittsburgh millionaire who was being interviewed by a New York reporter."

"Where, sir, were you born?" the reporter, as he sharpened his pencil, asked.

"I was born in Pittsburgh," said the millionaire.

"And when did you first—er—see the light of day?"

"When I was nine," the millionaire replied. "My people then moved to Philadelphia."
